GUIDE TO THE REPORT

SECTION A — THE JUDICIARY'S YEAR IN REVIEW

Part One: Reviewing Court System Activities 1991 presents a review of major activities of the Virginia judicial system in 1991 undertaken to improve and expand judicial services to the public. This section describes the work completed on the Judiciary's 1990-1992 Comprehensive Judicial Plan.

Part Two: Virginia Courts presents a review of activity in the courts of the Commonwealth during 1991 accompanied by a summary of their jurisdiction and structure.

Part Three: Other Activities presents a review of other important activities of the judicial system including information on the provision of indigent defense services and the involuntary civil commitment process.

SECTION B — CASELOAD SUMMARIES 1991 presents a review of annual activity in each of the thirty-one circuits and thirty-two districts in the Commonwealth. A narrative summary of caseload changes is accompanied by annual summary data for the circuit and district courts, as well as for the magistrate system.

SECTION C — JUDICIAL POLICY MAKING BODIES presents the names of those individuals currently serving on the Judicial Council, the Committee on District Courts, and the Judicial Conferences and their committees.

SECTION D — JUDGES AND THEIR TERMS presents the names and terms of justices and judges serving in Virginia's various courts.

SECTION E — PERSONNEL, SALARY AND CLASSIFICATION PLANS presents personnel salary and classification data for the district courts and magistrate system.

SECTION F — CASELOAD STATISTICS 1991 presents detailed and summary annual caseload data for individual circuit and district courts.

SECTION G — FINANCIAL STATISTICS presents expenditure and revenue data for the circuit and district courts.

STATE OF THE JUDICIARY
MESSAGE

To put it mildly, the year since we last met has been one of great change in this state as well as across the nation and throughout the world. It would be unrealistic to think the judicial system has been unaffected by all that has happened. Yet, of all our institutions, the judiciary must give the perception of stability and provide a sense of direction despite the changes that may occur around it. Each year, the presentation of the State of the Judiciary report affords me the opportunity to reflect upon the changes of the past year and to anticipate what the months ahead might bring. There is a temptation to use the occasion to offer a litany of past successes. But, such an exercise would be unhelpful if not placed in context of the broader set of values upon which we rely for our stability and by which we chart our direction.

The mission of the Virginia judicial system is to resolve disputes justly. "Just resolution" is a term that cannot readily be defined but is better understood as the objective of a judicial system in which all proceedings are conducted in an expeditious and fair manner, with equal application of the rules of law to all users of the system. And how have we advanced this objective in our recent endeavors?

In an effort to improve the quality of justice for Virginia families involved in litigation, the 1989 General Assembly, at the request of the Judicial Council, adopted legislation creating a Family Court Pilot Project. The project began on January 1, 1990, and continued in ten courts throughout the Commonwealth through December 31, 1991. The implementation of the project proceeded smoothly, and I want to express my appreciation to all those who participated for their commitment to this experiment.

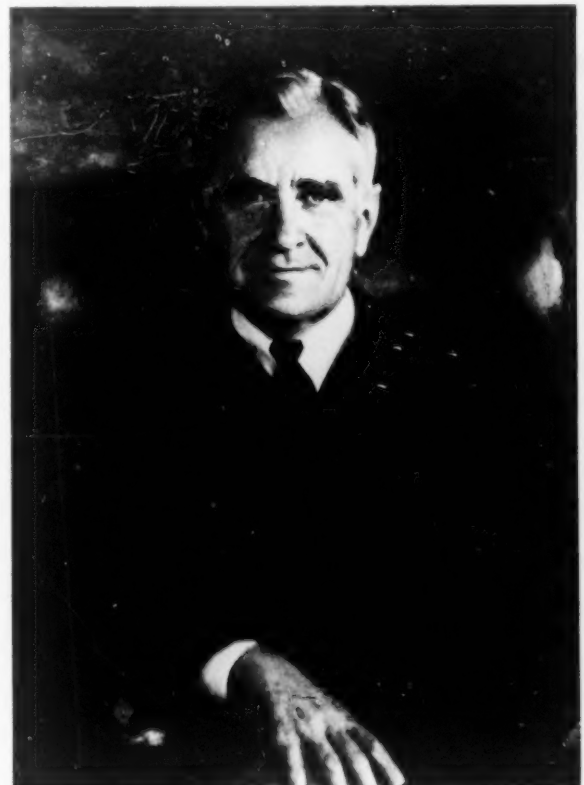

The advisory committee I appointed to oversee this project is busy collecting information and preparing an evaluation report for submission to the Judicial Council on June 23. At that time, the report will also be distributed throughout the state for public comment. The Judicial Council plans to receive comments over the summer and to take action on the report in October. It is our hope that a symposium can be convened in November that will allow broad-based discussion of the Council's final recommendations.

While the results of the Evaluation Committee's analysis are still unknown, I have been impressed by the number of responses to survey questions we received from litigants. Over 2,700 completed survey forms have been received, a response rate indicative of the fact that people appreciate being asked about their court experiences.

The responses reflect a general feeling about the importance of family issues and the need to treat them in a comprehensive manner. Notable among specific responses are comments about the duplicative effect of trials de novo and the cost of commissioners in chancery. Also, questions have been raised about whether the adversarial system is a viable means of resolving family disputes, given the fact that, quite often, continuing relationships must be maintained between the parties long after the legal issues ostensibly have been resolved. These are all issues which bear directly upon the quality of the way in which we dispose of a body of cases vitally important to our society. And they are issues that should receive full attention in the Judicial Council's report.

In keeping with a recommendation of the Futures Commission, a federal grant allowed us to establish, in the spring of 1991, a department of dispute resolution services within the Office of the Executive Secretary. During its initial year of operation, the department has focused upon four broad objectives, which include creating a network or clearinghouse on alternative dispute resolution in Virginia, increasing the level of awareness of the bench, the bar, and the public concerning alternative mechanisms and their use, developing programs for implementation of alternative dispute resolution services throughout the state, and strengthening ties to community ADR providers in order to facilitate a closer relationship between the courts and the communities.

A Dispute Resolution Services Advisory Council has been established to serve as a forum for the exchange of ideas and to formulate recommendations on ADR issues. While the use of mediation and other alternative means are not suited for every type of case, it is clear there are some types of cases for which they are more suited than traditional procedures. When viable options are identified, they should be made available to the public without delay.

To this end, the Judicial Council has endorsed a legislative proposal developed by a joint committee of the Virginia State Bar and the Virginia Bar Association which would provide a uniform process for court referrals to alternative dispute mechanisms. This proposal encourages the use of dispute resolution proceedings that promote open communication between the parties, full exploration of all the options available to resolve the dispute, and more participation by the parties in the outcome of the controversy.

I am hopeful that this legislative proposal will be adopted by the 1993 session of the General Assembly. I believe that the legislation would improve the quality of the result in an appreciable number of cases, encourage early settlement of litigation through referral of cases to a process that is more appropriate for the type of dispute involved, and insure a uniform and consistent integration of alternative dispute resolution processes into the court system. I would like to encourage each of you to learn more about ADR and how it might be used in your court.

In keeping with our objective that proceedings be conducted in an expeditious manner, I want to mention again this year the calendar management and delay reduction efforts being undertaken throughout the state. As you know, the Case Processing Time Guidelines went into effect on July 1, 1991. With these guidelines, the Council proposed voluntary, aspiration-based goals to address the necessity of reducing both the delay in and the cost of litigation.

By the end of 1991, calendar management efforts were underway in at least eight of our circuits. After learning of the enthusiasm with which the bench and the bar in these areas have undertaken docket improvement programs, I am firmly convinced that we are on the right course. However, report after report confirms that delay can only be reduced when judges assume a leadership role and accept responsibility for managing court dockets.

Furthermore, our experience is evidence of the fact that no single docket management approach is effective for all the courts in Virginia. The judges of each circuit, working with the bar, must find the most effective program for their area. While any change tends to create some concern, I am pleased with the initiative being shown by both bench and bar on the delay reduction issue, and I encourage even greater effort in the year ahead.

By the way, I am pleased to report to you that the Supreme Court remains current in its docket. It also continues to fulfill its commitment to get a case in and out of the court within one year from the time the petition for appeal is filed and the opinion is handed down. Indeed, at the moment, the average time between filing and final disposition is nine months. And we have managed to maintain our up-to-date status despite an 18 percent increase in filings in 1990 and a 12 percent increase in 1991.

The caseloads continue to grow in circuit and district courts as well. In 1991, 216,915 cases were commenced in the circuit courts of Virginia, an increase of 5.3 percent above the figure for 1990. The average commenced caseload per judge totalled 1,632 cases as compared to 1,027 just 15 years ago. In general district courts, 3.2 million cases were filed in 1991, representing a 2.6 percent increase over the previous year. The juvenile and domestic relations district courts report a 4.8 percent rise in new cases for 1991, resulting in a total of 339,456 filings for that year.

While the workload has continued to increase, the availability of resources has not kept pace. I should note, however, that even in these difficult financial times, the General Assembly authorized three new judgeships and added 63 new staff positions at its 1992 session. Furthermore, the two percent salary increase which was scheduled to go into effect on December 1, 1990, was funded for December 1, 1992. I remain hopeful that, as economic conditions improve, the General Assembly will recognize other, long-term needs of the court system and enable us to keep pace with the demands of ever-increasing caseloads.

In addition to resolving disputes justly and administering the court system effectively, the courts must make themselves more accountable and more responsive to the concerns of the citizenry. As was suggested by the Futures Commission, we must reevaluate what we do and adopt a more user-oriented perspective in all the relationships between the bench and the bar on the one hand and the public on the other.

In order to listen to the users of our system and to improve public confidence in the courts, we have, with the approval of the Judicial Council and a grant from the State Justice Institute, started a consumer research and service development project. The purpose of this project is to provide mechanisms for citizens to make known their viewpoints on the operation of the courts, their perceptions of needed services, and their ideas for suitable changes.

To assist in carrying out this purpose, a statewide advisory panel has been organized, consisting of judges, clerks, magistrates, customer service experts, researchers, and just plain citizens. The panel has the responsibility to review feedback compiled through a variety of research and survey techniques and then to provide its insight into needed changes in services. All this information will be incorporated into our planning process to assist the courts, the Judicial Council, and the General Assembly in identifying measures to improve the way we do business.

I told you last year that no program directed to building public confidence in the courts could be more important than one improving the method this Commonwealth employs to select judges. I added that no one could be more proud than I of the men and women who occupy the benches of Virginia and that I would defend to my utmost their reputation for integrity, proficiency, and ability.

I said, however, that a change in the method we use to select judges is absolutely essential to continue the high quality of the Virginia judiciary. Accordingly, I recommended the creation of a Judicial Nominations Commission, clothed with the authority to screen and nominate all candidates for judicial office. And I said I was making the recommendation for the serious consideration of all those concerned with providing the people of this Commonwealth an independent, accessible, and responsible forum for the just resolution of disputes.

Unfortunately, the proposal met the same fate as all earlier efforts to secure an improved selection method. The proposal passed the Senate, but foundered in the House of Delegates. Yet, I am not disheartened or discouraged. I cannot help but believe the change will come one day, perhaps sooner than some think.

So, I say again this year, but with even more emphasis, that a change in the method we use to select judges is absolutely essential. I recommend once more, but with a stronger voice, the creation of a Judicial Nominations Commission to screen and nominate all candidates for judicial office. And I resubmit the proposal, but with greater belief in its merit, for the serious consideration of those concerned with maintaining a qualified judiciary in Virginia.

At the outset of these remarks, I told you that it would be unrealistic to think that the judicial system would be unaffected by all that has happened in the past year. When I first wrote those words, I did not know how prophetic they might be — the jury had yet to return its verdicts in the Rodney King case and Los Angeles had yet to be turned upside down by the riots that followed.

I have no doubt that the events in Los Angeles will affect every judicial system in the country. How they will be affected and to what extent remains to be seen, but you can be sure we will receive closer attention from the public than ever before. Therefore, we must, more than ever, try to give the perception of stability and provide the sense of direction that, as I noted earlier, are uniquely our responsibility.

We must consider the interests of the public in everything we do. After all, the courts exist for the benefit of the public, and public support is vitally essential to the continued existence of the judicial system. It should be our constant goal to conduct ourselves in ways that cultivate the public's support and earn its respect.

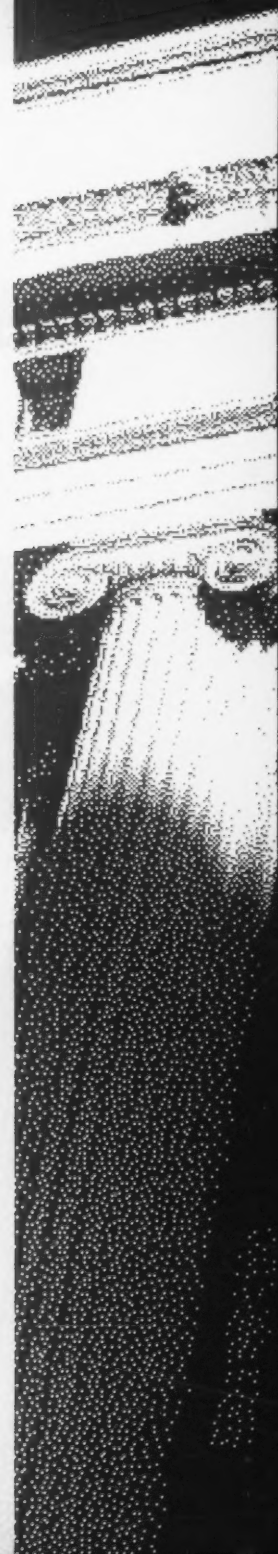

One important way is to give courteous, expeditious, and efficient treatment to all members of the public who use the courts. They are entitled to respect from all with whom they have official contact, be it with clerk's office personnel, bailiffs, lawyers, or judges. I am firmly convinced that a party who is treated courteously in court is apt to think he received justice even though he loses his case.

In closing last year, I expressed my appreciation to you for the spirit of cooperation you had displayed in the arduous economic circumstances in which we found ourselves. I told you I did not know when the difficult times would end, and I can make no better prediction now. But I believe they will end, hopefully sooner rather than later, and I have faith that, in the meantime, your cooperation will continue as before. And, for that, I am deeply grateful.

(Address delivered by Chief Justice Carrico at the Judicial Conference of Virginia, May 11, 1992).

THE JUDICIARY'S
YEAR IN REVIEW

Section A — Part One

REVIEWING COURT SYSTEM ACTIVITIES
1991

Reviewing Court System Activities 1991, Part One of the Judiciary's Year In Review, presents a summary of major activities undertaken by the Virginia court system in 1991 which are designed to improve and expand judicial services to the public. Many of these projects were initiated pursuant to objectives established in the 1990-1992 Comprehensive Judicial Plan.

- ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROGRAM
- TRIAL COURT PERFORMANCE STANDARDS
- CALENDAR MANAGEMENT/DELAY REDUCTION
- CONSUMER RESEARCH AND SERVICE DEVELOPMENT PROCESS
- FAMILY COURT PILOT PROJECT
- SUBSTANCE ABUSE AND THE COURTS
- BUILDING BETTER CLIENT RELATIONS
- MAGISTRATE SYSTEM STUDY
- TECHNOLOGY IN THE COURTS
- FISCAL OVERVIEW OF THE JUDICIARY
- AWARDS RECOGNITION PROGRAM
- COUNCIL ON COMMUNITY SERVICES FOR YOUTH AND FAMILIES

As was forecast in the report of the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System, courts in the 1990's are beginning to experience the full force of a changing society, a more diverse citizenry, and a less predictable funding base. Increasingly, those within the judicial system speak of the "clash of realities", that is, the demands being placed on judges and court personnel to deal simultaneously and with equal attention to numerous critical issues facing the judicial system.

Increasingly, those within the judicial system speak of the "clash of realities", that is, the demands being placed on judges and court personnel to deal simultaneously and with equal attention to numerous critical issues facing the judicial system.

A core strategy utilized within the Virginia judiciary to respond effectively to the multiple demands confronting the courts is system-wide strategic planning. In 1990, the Judicial Council adopted Foresight 2000: A Strategic Plan covering the 1990-92 biennium. The plan contains 26 objectives and 99 specific action items for improving and expanding judicial system services to the public. Following its first full year of implementation, approximately 50 percent of these actions items were underway or had been completed. The progress made by those within the courts to effect these improvements and those to respond to the diverse demands on the courts is described in this section.

ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION PROGRAM

The Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System recommended and the Judicial Council later concurred that a statewide office of alternative dispute resolution services should be established within the Judiciary. In order to implement this recommendation, the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court received grant funding from the Department of Criminal Justice Services to establish the Department of Dispute Resolution Services in April, 1991.

During its initial year of operation, the Department has focused on four broad objectives which include: creating a network/clearinghouse of information on ADR in Virginia and across the country; increasing the level of awareness of the bench, the bar, and the public concerning alternative mechanisms and their use; developing programs for implementation throughout the state; and, strengthening ties to community ADR providers in order to facilitate a closer relationship between the courts and communities.

Active involvement in the newly formed coalition of Community Mediation Centers has been the central strategy in developing a networking/clearinghouse capability. The Coalition provides support for the ten mediation/dispute resolution centers around the state. An important objective is the creation of a forum in which judges and Center representatives can come together to exchange ideas as to how each can assist the other.

To determine current usage of ADR services by Virginia's judges and their level of interest in expanding such services, a survey instrument was developed. It was disseminated to all 323 Circuit Court, General District Court and Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court judges. With more than 68% responding, a baseline of information on existing programs was established. Respondents also indicated their interest in participating in educational programs and pilot projects to be developed by the judiciary.

native mechanisms. Presentations have been made throughout the past year to the Judicial Council, the Conference of District Court Judges, new circuit court clerks, several regional judges' meetings, and at the Pre-Bench Orientation Program. These programs have heightened awareness and understanding of the possibilities that ADR can bring to judicial setting. In keeping with the broad perspective adopted for education, presentations have been made to the Virginia State Bar's Executive Council as well as at two Virginia law schools.

A Dispute Resolution Services Advisory Council was established to serve as a forum for the exchange of ideas and to formulate recommendations on ADR issues. The Council, composed of judges, clerks, lawyers, an academician and several ADR practitioners, has identified a myriad of issues which will influence the future direction of ADR within the state. In order to examine three substantive issues in greater detail, subcommittees were formed to address: training and certification; funding; and, rules and procedures.

These subcommittees met throughout the year with two of them formulating recommendations. The Training and Certification Subcommittee has drafted a proposal regarding the guidelines for certification of court-connected mediators. Program guidelines have been developed by the Rules and Procedures Subcommittee. The overriding objective in articulating those guidelines is to maintain the degree of flexibility that each local program needs while at the same time providing enough structure to meaningfully guide courts and practitioners. These recommendations are being prepared for presentation to the Judicial Council.

Working with the Joint Committee on Dispute Resolution of the Virginia State Bar and the Virginia Bar Association, a response was prepared to HJR 435 calling for a study of court-annexed arbitration. More significantly, draft legislation was developed and introduced to the 1992 General Assembly which clarified judges' authority to refer appropriate cases to an alternative dispute resolution process. This legislative proposal did ensure that litigants would not be denied the right to trial through the traditional adjudicative process should the case not be resolved through ADR. Even though the General Assembly decided to carry this piece of legislation over to their 1993 session, inroads were made toward establishing the groundwork for acceptance and provision of alternative mechanisms.

In the area of program development, funding is being sought from the National Institute of Dispute Resolution for implementation of a pilot program in Prince William/Manassas. The program developed by the Prince William/Manassas Dispute Resolution Task Force seeks to establish a mediation coordinator to screen an established percentage of cases filed to assess their suitability for an alternative solution. Once a case is identified, this coordinator would meet with the parties involved to determine their interest in mediation. It is anticipated that this pilot would be the model for the implementation of other similar programs around the state.

TRIAL COURT PERFORMANCE STANDARDS

In 1990, the Judicial Council approved the recommendation made by the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System to adopt trial court performance standards. These standards provide a means of self-evaluation and self-improvement for the trial courts in order to better meet the needs of those the court serves. As part of the process of establishing statewide standards, the Commission suggested that Virginia examine the model standards developed by the national Commission on Trial Court Performance Standards. This led to Virginia being selected as one of the four states to pilot the implementation portion of the Standards Project with the Fairfax Circuit Court serving as the test court.

The National Center for State Courts in conjunction with the Bureau of Justice Assistance established the Commission on Trial Court Performance Standards in 1987. What distinguished the work of this Commission from former court reform efforts was its emphasis on outcomes and meeting the needs of those served by the courts as opposed to the structures and machinery of courts and the needs of judges and court personnel. Therefore, these newly developed standards and accompanying measurement system prescribe what trial courts should accomplish.

These standards provide a means of self-evaluation and self-improvement for the trial courts in order to better meet the needs of those the court serves.

The Commission developed 22 separate standards which are grouped into five broad performance areas. Standards relating to Access to Justice require that the structure and machinery of the courts be accessible to those served by the courts. The standards on Expedition and Timeliness relate not only to the prompt and efficient resolution of disputes, but encompass all court activities. Requiring that, in each case, trial courts provide due process and individual justice as well as treat similar litigants equally is the focus of those standards under Equality, Fairness, and Integrity. According to standards under Independence and Accountability, trial courts must be independent of and maintain parity with the legislative and executive branches. They also require that courts be accountable for the use of their resources and that personnel practices and decisions establish the highest standards of integrity and competence among court employees. Lastly, standards under Public Trust and Confidence address the courts' responsibility to instill in the citizens the trust and confidence that courts are being operated fairly, efficiently, and effectively.

Accompanying the standards is a detailed measurement system. This system outlines one or more specific performance measures for each of the standards. By following the data collection strategies associated with each of the measures a trial court is then able to systematically evaluate and assess its performance. It should be noted that this self-assessment focuses on the court as an organization rather than the performance of individual court personnel.

The Fairfax Circuit Court began its involvement with the Standards Project in April, 1991. At that time an orientation was held for the judges and key court personnel who would be involved in the implementation of the measurement process. Participants were first introduced to the basic philosophy concerning optimum trial court performance that emerged from the Commission's three-year study. This was followed by a brief description of the various data collection techniques that would be required for each of the measures.

A grant from the State Justice Institute is funding the implementation of the measurement process. The time frame calls for all 72 measures to be tested over a three year period with completion scheduled for June 30, 1994.

Following a review of the 72 measures, it was decided to begin the process by using each of three most frequently used data collection techniques which were mail surveys, volunteer observers and case file reviews.

A mail survey, directed at regular court users, was developed to solicit information on the ease of using the courthouse facility, perceptions of courthouse security and the courtesy and responsiveness of court personnel. These surveys were sent to a sample of attorneys, jurors, court reporters, title searchers, probation officers, police officers, bailiffs and to all judges and court employees. The results are currently being tabulated and a report will be given to the court in the spring.

Since court records may affect the rights and duties of individuals for generations, their protection and preservation over time are vital. A series of measures focuses on the reliability of the file control system, the storage and preservation of the records, the case file integrity and the accuracy and consistency of the case docket. A random sample of case numbers was generated for both criminal and civil actions. These files are currently being reviewed to determine whether or not the case file system meets the established standards.

The third technique currently being tested in Fairfax uses volunteer observers. These volunteers are recruited to participate in two measures that determine accessibility. The first measure simply verifies whether or not proceedings are open. Volunteers are assigned several cases scheduled on a given day, they then must be able to find that case and enter the courtroom. The second measure determines whether or not a volunteer can understand the courtroom calendar. In other words, once in the courtroom, an observer should be able to determine whether or not the assigned case is actually being heard. If this cannot be determined, then accessibility is compromised.

During the course of the upcoming twelve months, a significant proportion of the measures will be tested. Information gathered from Virginia and the other pilot states will be presented to the Judicial Council and forwarded to the Commission on Trial Court Performance Standards. Using this feedback, the Commission will make revisions to the measurement system. The revised standards and measures will then be distributed to courts across the country.

CALENDAR MANAGEMENT/DELAY REDUCTION

The Judicial Council's calendar management and delay reduction objectives for Virginia's trial courts became effective

July 1, 1991. Programs to improve caseload management procedures were on-going in at least eight circuits/districts by the year's end. In several other individual courts, efforts were initiated to assess the condition of the civil and criminal dockets vis a vis delay and to determine whether changes in local case processing practices were needed.

The steps taken by circuit courts were directed primarily at improving civil case management procedures for law cases. These steps include the adoption of new procedures to assist judges in more active monitoring of the progress of cases filed in several courts and the development of an experimental program within the 26th Circuit to determine the effect of instituting expedited case management procedures.

The Judicial Council's calendar management and delay reduction objectives for Virginia's trial courts became effective July 1, 1991. Programs to improve caseload management procedures were on-going in at least eight circuits/districts by the year's end.

In the 23rd Circuit, the circuit judges formally requested the assistance of the local bar to study and make recommendations on methods of improving caseload management procedures for all three circuit courts. In the second circuit, a new civil case management program for law cases was developed for the Virginia Beach Circuit Court, to become effective in January, 1992. The latter program also was a joint effort between the court, the clerk's office and the local bar.

Measures to expedite the disposition of cases in the district courts were undertaken as well. Some of these efforts, as in the ninth district, were directed specifically towards meeting the goals established by the Council's voluntary case processing time guidelines for the disposition of criminal cases and traffic cases.

The Council's calendar management and delay reduction objectives were established following several years of study both by bar committees and groups within the judiciary, including the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System. The objectives call for leadership by the bench in establishing cooperative efforts among the court, the clerks' offices, the local bar and others to ensure continued access to justice by eliminating unnecessary litigation costs and delay.

In creating caseload management and delay reduction

*Statement of the Judicial Council of Virginia on the
Adoption and Implementation of Case Processing Time Guidelines (Implemented July 1, 1991)*

Excellence in the administration of justice is a longstanding commitment made by the judiciary to the people of Virginia. In the eyes of the public, "excellence" increasingly is being measured by the ease and quality of the litigation process as well as the case outcome. Thus, a continuing obligation of the judiciary is to ensure effective access to justice, including the opportunity to resolve disputes without undue hardship, cost, inconvenience, or delay.

During the past decade, leaders within Virginia's judicial branch have sought to address each of these barriers to ready access to the courts. Of growing consternation is court delay, recognized in Virginia and elsewhere as a prime cause of diminished public trust and confidence in the courts. As caseloads at each level of court have increased, judges and clerks have worked diligently, albeit in different ways, to manage the volume of litigation and avoid the scope of delay experienced in other states. In addition, the General Assembly of Virginia consistently has assisted the courts through the provision of additional judicial resources where required.

Determining methods to improve efficiency in case processing as well as increasing the convenience of courts to litigants also has been an important objective set forth by the Judicial Council within its Comprehensive Judicial Plan. Pilot projects on delay reduction have been initiated in several courts and training seminars on the topic have been provided. Reports on court delay have been issued both by the Virginia Bar Association and committees of the Virginia State Bar.

Most recently, the 1989 report of the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System developed an extensive set of proposals aimed at addressing court delay both today and in the coming decades. Notwithstanding these significant efforts, legislators, Bar members, citizens, and, importantly, judges and court officials continue to express open concern about the ability and capacity of the trial and appellate courts to resolve disputes in the expeditious manner all citizens deserve.

In concert with the recommendations of the Futures Commission and its own previously established objectives, the Council believes that in order for the courts to continue to dispense justice in a timely and efficient manner, there is need for a more comprehensive approach to reducing and preventing delay. Thus, the following case processing time guidelines for the trial courts have been adopted by the Council:

- A. General Civil — (Circuit Court) 90% of all civil cases should be settled, tried, or otherwise concluded within 12 months of the date of case filing; 98% within 18 months of such filing; and the remainder within 24 months of such filing except for individual cases in which the Court determines exceptional circumstances exist and for which a continuing review should occur.
- B. Criminal —
 - FELONY — (Circuit Court) 90% of all felony cases should be adjudicated or otherwise concluded within 120 days from the date of arrest; 98% within 180 days; and 100% within one year. Preliminary hearings for felony cases in district courts should be concluded within 45 days from the date of arrest.
 - MISDEMEANOR — (General District Court and adult misdemeanors in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court) 90% of all misdemeanors and infractions should be adjudicated or otherwise concluded within 60 days from the date of arrest or citation and 100% within 90 days.
 - PERSONS IN PRETRIAL CUSTODY — Persons incarcerated before trial should be afforded priority for trial.

The guideline for criminal cases covers the time from arrest to adjudication not sentencing.

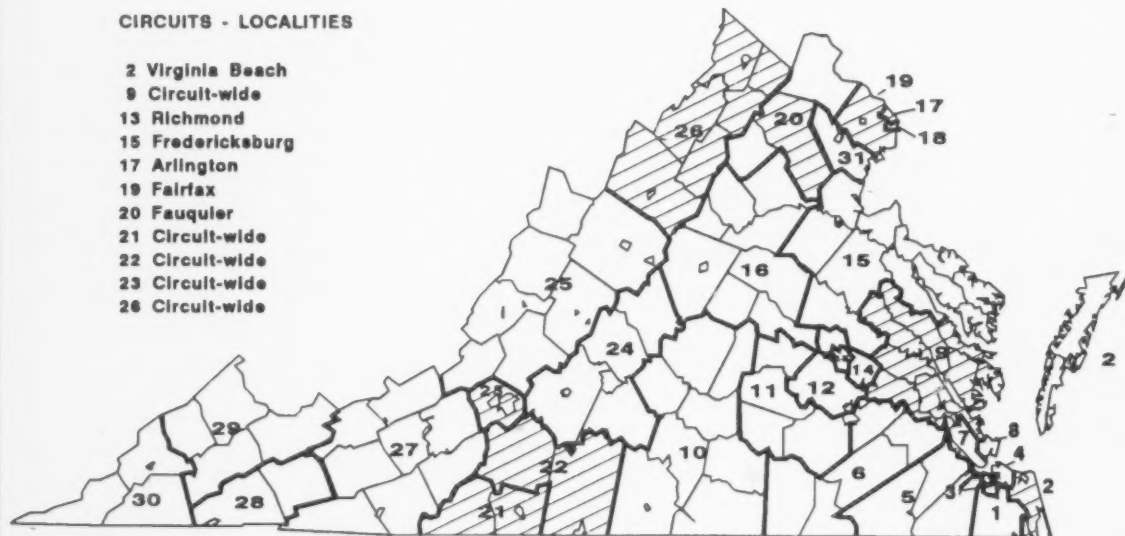

At a later time, the Council will consider development of time guidelines for the disposition of domestic relations cases as well as juvenile and small claims cases. Further, Council endorses the continued implementation of appellate time goals previously set by the Supreme Court and Court of Appeals.

objectives that were appropriate for Virginia's courts, the Council also set forth several key concepts that undergird the entire effort. First and foremost among these is the belief that such efforts are necessary in order for the courts to continue to carry out their basic mission of rendering justice in the individual case.

To assist judges and court officials with the implementation of calendar management and delay reduction objectives in their areas, a number of educational programs were held in 1991 at state and regional judicial conferences for circuit judges. In addition, a guidebook was developed for and distributed to circuit judges and clerks mid-year to provide ideas for steps that can be taken to initiate docket management projects.

For automated courts, a series of calendar management information reports were designed, developed and installed on the case management system of the Court Automated Information System. These reports are intended to provide for those in local courts a means of reviewing the condition of their dockets and pinpointing where delays may be occurring. On the basis of these reports and input from the clerks' offices, the bar and others, judges are better able to determine what changes, if any, should be made in order to enhance the courts' ability to dispense justice in a manner that is both as expeditious and inexpensive for litigants as possible.

In 1992, several new calendar management reports will be made available on the automated system. Further, technical assistance will continue to be offered, as requested, to any courts establishing local calendar management and delay reduction projects.

CONSUMER RESEARCH AND SERVICE DEVELOPMENT PROCESS

An additional innovative approach towards increasing the level of public confidence and respect for the courts was initiated in 1991 with the establishment of the Consumer Research and Service Development Process. Specifically, the project is designed to meet four specific objectives. These include:

- Creating a mechanism for citizens to make known to state and local judicial system officials their viewpoints on the operation of the courts needed services, and recommendations for specific reforms.
- Providing a service through which local courts may obtain assistance in developing questionnaires for utilization in identifying specific needs within a locality, circuit, or district.

- Enhancing service forecasting and direction-setting for the courts through the establishment of a research and survey capacity to determine key problem areas in court and community relations, service trends, and needed changes in substantive law.
- Developing a list of potential services by analyzing the results of the consumer research and surveys and utilizing this information in the judicial planning and budgeting process to specify services for implementation during a given planning cycle.

Toward this end, the Supreme Court of Virginia obtained funding from the State Justice Institute to begin development of the process. A statewide advisory panel was organized, comprised of citizens, judges, clerks, magistrates, customer service experts, and researchers. This panel is charged with reviewing the feedback compiled through the research and providing additional insight into needed changes in services.

During the initial stages of the project, a comprehensive literature review was conducted which was used to formulate the overall research plan for the program. Emphasis was placed on identifying various methods for obtaining input from a variety of court users as well as judges and court personnel. Following a review of all relevant information collected, a final research plan was prepared. That plan outlined four methods of data collection for use during the first year: focus groups, placement of suggestion boxes in courts, a telephone survey of adults, and the distribution of self-administered questionnaires to citizens as they exit the courtroom. Once data is collected through these various means, they will be analyzed in order to ascertain what improvements can be made to improve the court system. These improvements may be in the form of new products, services or substantive changes to the judicial system. After a list of improvements is generated, it will be reviewed and prioritized by staff and the statewide advisory panel.

A series of six "focus groups" were held as the first step in the information gathering process. These groups were made up of citizens, judges, clerks, magistrates and attorneys with three being held in an urban area and the other three in a rural setting.

A focus group is best described as a round-table discussion lead by a trained moderator. It is similar to in-depth, one-on-one interviews except that issues are discussed by a group of 10-12 participants at a time. The driving force behind the focus group concept is that comments and suggestions made by one participant may trigger ideas and comments from others in the group. Principally, focus groups are involved in gathering qualitative information through the examination of the "whys" behind the issues. While this qualitative data is quite useful, it is generally not used in isolation. Most researchers supplement focus group data with quantitative data gathered through survey research.

The quantitative data for this project will be generated through a self-administered survey, a telephone survey, and through forms completed by court users and placed in suggestion boxes. The self-administered questionnaires will be given to citizens as they exit the courtroom. At that time, they will be asked to provide responses to questions concerning areas in which the court could better serve them.

During the same time frame that the self-administered questionnaires are being distributed, a large-scale telephone survey of adult Virginians will be conducted. The telephone survey will target approximately 1,600 people and unlike the self-administered questionnaire will include people who have had direct experience with the courts as well as those who have not. The survey instrument is designed to elicit from respondents ways in which the courts can better serve them either through the introduction of new services or improvements in accessing the existing court services.

The final method for collecting hard data will be through the distribution of suggestion boxes to the courts. The purpose of these boxes is not to receive feedback on the quality of service provided by a particular court, but, again, to obtain input about needed services within the judiciary.

Unlike most court-related research, this project will focus on the actual needs of users of the judicial system, including employees of the courts, rather than how much the citizenry knows or does not know about the judicial branch or their attitudes towards the court. These topics have already been adequately addressed through a number of other surveys. As an outcome of the process, however, it is hoped that attitudes of the citizenry toward the courts will show a positive shift as the courts become more "user friendly" and less formidable to those using the system. These attributes, and others, will be measured prior to and after implementation to determine if the new products and services and changes to court operations are having the desired impact.

Once the ideas are generated from the research and reviewed by the statewide advisory panel, they will be presented to the Judicial Council as part of the court system's strategic planning process. It is envisioned that the information made available through this process will be used by policy makers, judges, and court personnel to better plan the services provided by the courts. In addition, results of the research will provide the necessary documentation to enact substantive law and policy changes submitted to the General Assembly.

At the end of the first year, funding will be sought to begin the product and service development phase of the project. Based on research undertaken during the first year, new products and services will begin to be tested and implemented, first, in selected courts and later throughout the Commonwealth.

FAMILY COURT PROJECT

Virginia's experimental family courts authorized by the 1989 Session of the General Assembly concluded their two-year pilot operation on December 31, 1991. The eleven volunteer courts which operated as Family Courts and the two control circuit courts continued to submit data for evaluation of the effort through the early months of 1992. Those Family Court cases not concluded in 1991 were continued through early 1992 until a conclusion was reached.

Virginia's experimental family courts authorized by the 1989 Session of the General Assembly concluded their two-year pilot operation on December 31, 1991.

During the project, circuit courts in the participating jurisdictions referred at least 20 percent of their cases involving divorce, annulment and affirmation of marriage to the new Family Courts. In addition, Family Courts heard all other matters related to these cases such as custody, support, visitation, child abuse and delinquency. Decisions of the Family Courts concerning suits for divorce, annulment, affirmation of marriage, custody visitation, support and termination of parental rights are appealable to the Court of Appeals. All other matters are appealed to the circuit court.

The Family Court Pilot Project Advisory Committee, appointed by Chief Justice Carrico at the request of the Judicial Council, focused its work in 1991 on initiating the evaluation of the project. Under the direction of the Subcommittee on Evaluation nearly 9,000 surveys were mailed to litigants in the participating courts. The survey recipients were randomly selected from the information gathered on more than 25,000 cases for which data sheets were completed about family law matters in the participating courts. Litigants were asked to rate their satisfaction with the court process and its impact on their family situation. More than 30 percent of the surveys were completed.

In addition, all judges, clerks and court service unit directors in the pilot and control courts and nearly 1,000 lawyers who practice family law in the participating judicial circuits were surveyed to assess their experience with the family court project. The judges who sit full-time as family court judges were interviewed by project staff.

The analyses of the survey and interview information as well as of the specific case information collected on over 25,000 cases in the pilot and control courts is ongoing. This work is supported by grant funding from the Department of Criminal Justice Services (DCJS). These funds have provided continued assistance to the project by two family and child psychologists from two state universities and a staff member from the National Center for State Courts.

During the fall of 1991, the Subcommittee on Wrap-Up Policies and Procedures established by the Advisory Committee developed and distributed to all participating courts materials to assist in completing family court cases and activities. Procedures similar to those distributed at the beginning of the project were written to complete data gathering efforts, as well as the return of case files to the circuit courts when appropriate. Training on these policies was made available to all clerks' offices in early December, 1991.

The participants in this two year project were: the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts of Albemarle, Alexandria, Chesapeake, Fairfax, Loudoun, and Lynchburg; the Circuit Courts of Mecklenburg, Roanoke City, Roanoke County and Smyth, and effective August 1, 1990, Chesapeake Circuit Court; and the Circuit Courts of Arlington and Pulaski which served as control courts.

The Family Court Pilot Project Advisory Committee will report to the Judicial Council on the evaluation of the project during 1992. As required by law, the Judicial Council will make its report to the General Assembly by December 31, 1992.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE AND THE COURTS: VIRGINIA'S RESPONSE

The mounting substance abuse crisis is another area which the judiciary confronted during 1991. Concern within the judiciary over the dimensions of the problems facing Virginia's courts as a result of this crisis cannot be overstated. One juvenile and domestic relations district court judge characterized the situation as "mind-boggling." Speaking of the dilemma for the court system overall, Chief Justice Carrico told trial judges attending Virginia's Judicial Response to Substance Abuse Conference, held in February, 1992:

"With more aggressive and better funded law enforcement and, correspondingly, without commensurate action and funding for courts, defense, corrections and treatment services, this avalanche will overwhelm us . . . As you know all too well, this is a situation from which courts can neither run nor hide. As leaders of the judicial branch, we must rely on all of our reasoning and imaginative skills to address this situation, for it will not be abated without appropriate action now."

Data measuring the specific impacts of substance abuse caseloads on Virginia's courts are extremely limited. However, data published by the Department of Criminal Justice Services in 1991 indicate that between 1985 and 1989, drug-related arrests involving adults rose from 13% to 23% of total felony arrests. Drug offenses also have made up a larger percentage of total felony convictions over the past several years, increasing by 14% over the same time frame. An examination of Virginia's median case processing time for felony drug offenses between 1985 and 1989 reflects a steady and expected increase. With the introduction of initiatives such as the Judicial Council's voluntary case processing time guidelines, the median case processing times have leveled since 1989 but little ground has been gained.

Between 1985 and 1989, drug-related arrests involving adults rose from 13% to 23% of total felony arrests. Drug offenses also have made up a larger percentage of total felony convictions over the past several years, increasing by 14% over the same time frame.

The state's juvenile and domestic relations courts particularly have been affected by the substance abuse crisis. In 1982, juveniles accounted for less than 1% of all such arrests. Beginning in 1988, the proportion of all arrests for Schedule I/II drug sales involving juveniles rose dramatically and continued to rise through 1990. By that time, juveniles accounted for 10% of all arrests for Schedule I/II drug sales. This increase becomes more graphic when viewed in terms of the actual numbers of juveniles arrested. In 1982 only four juvenile arrests were made; in 1990, 417 juvenile arrests were made. On a percentage basis, this increase in drug arrests for juveniles from 1982 to 1990 is 20 times that of adults.

Dramatic changes like these are not limited to Virginia, but are occurring across the nation. In response to this phenomenon, the National Center for State Courts sponsored in November, 1991, a National Conference on the Impact of Substance Abuse in the Courts in Washington, D.C. Recognizing that the courts are in a strategic position to facilitate coordination and encourage cooperation, the program was designed to assist state courts in developing strategies and programs which would foster communication and coordination across disciplinary and governmental boundaries.

In keeping with this purpose, Chief Justice Carrico appointed a team of five persons to represent Virginia at this meeting. The team consisted of two trial court judges, a Cabinet-level representative from the Governor's Office, a local prosecutor, and a treatment professional. The team took advantage of this opportunity to outline a plan designed to help ensure that Virginia's court system realistically and effectively responds to the impact that this crisis will have on the overall operation of the courts.

One component of that response was to provide training to judges on available alternatives for dealing with the substance abuse crisis. Charlottesville was the site for a program sponsored by the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges which dealt with specific issues involved in responding to alcohol and substance abuse problems. This two-day session addressed the dilemma from the perspectives of the community, the family, the courts, as well as assessment and treatment, with special attention directed at building coalitions to more effectively handle the problems.

The judiciary has concluded that the substance abuse problem is a strategic issue that will continue to dramatically affect caseloads at all levels of courts.

Therefore, the central approach in responding to this crisis is pro-active, coordinated strategic planning.

Overall, the judiciary has concluded that the substance abuse problem is a strategic issue that will continue to dramatically affect caseloads at all levels of courts. Therefore, the central approach in responding to this crisis is pro-active, coordinated strategic planning. By integrating the response to substance abuse with the court system's existing plans, it is more likely that action can be taken to address a range of related problems being experienced within courts. In order to effectively implement this strategy the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court of Virginia has sought funding from the State Justice Institute to strengthen the service forecasting capabilities of the judiciary and simultaneously develop, and, to some extent, re-engineer available information resources that are fed into the judiciary's strategic planning process. The second aspect of this proposal focuses on providing training and technical assistance to judges and clerks on assessing case processing problems and developing plans and procedures relevant to courts of varying size and location across the state. Through the operation of this two-pronged approach, it is believed that the performance of the system in anticipating and making the right decisions on critical issues such as substance abuse caseloads can be substantially and permanently approved.

BUILDING BETTER CLIENT RELATIONS IN DISTRICT COURTS

Responding to the Commission on the Future of Virginia's Judicial System's concern over the erosion of public confidence in the courts, a training curriculum entitled "Proven Techniques to Build and Maintain Public Support" was developed in 1990 and delivered to magistrates around the state. As a result of its success, a similar training program was offered during 1991 to district court clerks and their employees at various regional locations.

In order to develop a customized training curriculum, the trainer visited several district court clerks's offices and worked in concert with staff from the Office of the Executive Secretary to gather a comprehensive understanding of the work that takes place in a clerk's office. By combining this newly acquired perspective about the clerk's office with her expertise in client relations, a customized training seminar was produced. The program was further enhanced with the development of written scenarios depicting several typical problems that clerks face on a daily basis. Using actual clerks and a group of volunteers, the Department of Information Technology produced and videotaped the scenarios for use in the training process.

The training centered around the five basic steps for providing exceptional service when interacting with customers. Briefly, these are recognizing the customer, ascertaining the customer's needs, meeting those needs, exceeding the customer's expectations, and assuring the customer is satisfied. Special attention was given to the techniques for exceeding customer expectations without exceeding the employee's authority or placing undue burdens upon an employee.

Training centered around the five basic steps for providing exceptional service when interacting with customers:
recognizing the customer, ascertaining the customer's needs, meeting those needs, exceeding the customer's expectations, and assuring the customer is satisfied.

Participants received training in the HEAT technique which is effective in dealing with irate citizens. This process involves hearing the citizen out, empathizing about the problem with the citizen, apologizing for the existence of the problem and lastly, taking action to resolve the problem. Another critical skill in effective client relations is listening. Skill building exercises assisted participants in improving their listening abilities. With improved proficiency in listening, participants became better able to determine the exact cause of a citizen's problem. Exercises in restating a customer's problem, letting the customer know his/her problem is recognized along with probing techniques to reinforce an understanding of the problem enabled participants to put their training into practice.

Participants were provided a small training manual which could be used at their courts to train other employees. In addition, each person was asked to develop a goal that she/he wanted to implement within 30 days of returning to their court. These ideas were written on postcards which were sent to the individuals at the end of the period to remind them of their training program. Additional feedback on the effectiveness of the training will be gathered six months following each program delivery.

The delivery of this series of seminars reflected the high degree of preparation and analysis which had gone into the development. Participants evaluated the training experience very positively, only objecting to the fact that the training could not have been available to every district court employee.

MAGISTRATE SYSTEM STUDY

During 1991 an analysis was conducted to determine the effects of a proposal to improve magistrate services through the provision of these services from remote location utilizing interactive telecommunications technology. This study examined several issues connected with implementation, including, the impact that this procedure would have upon services to the public, law enforcement communities and local government agencies; a cost-benefit analysis associated with implementation; identification of the potential impacts that this process would have on individual magistrates; and, the specification of potential advantages, disadvantages and costs associated with the phased implementation of this program in various areas of the state.

Since this process would involve the use of electronic video and audio communications along with a facsimile process for the transmission of paperwork, there was concern regarding the quality of transmission as compared to "in person" hearings and what affect this might have on the magistrate's ability to execute his/her duties. To alleviate these concerns, demonstrations were conducted using fiber optic technology. This proved to be more than satisfactory to observers.

Following the study of all issues and minimization of concerns, a pilot program was instituted in Montgomery County between the towns of Blacksburg and Christiansburg, utilizing the demonstrated technology. This system, which is continually being assessed by the citizens using it along with judges, law enforcement officials and magistrates, has been considered an improvement in providing needed services. The evaluation process has identified needed improvements in existing equipment in order to enhance processing efficiency. Consideration is also being given to expanding the service to other localities within the Montgomery County district.

The Committee on District Courts has authorized the implementation of this program in jurisdictions across the state on a voluntary basis. An agreement must be reached between the local government and management of the court system prior to the commencement of the system.

Prior to any implementation, the Committee will review all aspects of this program to assure the satisfactory resolution of all issues and to monitor the costs of the system.

TECHNOLOGY IN THE COURTS

The hallmark for technology within the court system during 1991 was that its use continued to grow and expand. Even in the face of reduced funding, additional courts were added to the automated system. Enhanced capabilities, in the form of various interfaces, were provided to courts that were previously automated. Additionally, progress continued on electronically linking the courts with other agencies within the justice system in order to share information more quickly and to reduce the lag time that exists in keeping records up-to-date.

(As of December 31, 1991)

COURT AUTOMATION: CONTINUED EXPANSION

Expansion of the use of automation within the judicial system continued through 1991. The number of courts utilizing the Courts Automated Information System (CAIS) either the Case Management System (CAS) or Financial Management System (FMS) or both rose eight percent from 221 to 240 by year's end. This number includes 93 circuit courts, 61 general district courts, 37 combined courts, and 49 juvenile and domestic relations courts. In addition to those courts which implemented automation for the first time, a significant number of courts using only one of the automated systems began to use the second. This brought the total number of courts on CMS to 211 and those on FMS to 159 with the majority using both systems. See Display 2. This continued increase reflects the courts' acceptance of automation.

RECORDS INDEXING

Substantial progress was made on the CAIS Records Indexing system during 1991. This system, which meets all the statutory index requirements of Title 17, provides Virginia's circuit courts an efficient, comprehensive indexing system. The system, at present, indexes deeds, marriage licenses, judgments and general miscellaneous for local requirements. Plans are underway for the addition of financing statements, judgment lien docketing and wills in 1992.

While each system is designed to operate independently, standardization of the system is essential in minimizing the complexity involved in administering software updates, recovery procedures and providing technical support. The hardware has been upgraded from a Hewlett Packard 9000 Model 380 to a Hewlett Packard 9000 Model 817. Personnel in each court receive thorough training in the operation and maintenance of the installed hardware as well as the Records Indexing system itself. In addition, training is provided to local attorneys who frequently access these records with approximately 150 attorneys and title searchers already trained statewide. Following installation and training staff at the Office of the Executive Secretary (OES) continue to be available to offer assistance through a dial-in capability installed with each system.

Although Records Indexing is a stand alone system, an interface will allow those courts with the Financial Management System (FMS) to initiate a base index record upon receipt of a recordation fee through the personal computer register, eliminating some of the redundant data entry that currently exists. Using the records index system enables a court to perform merges at its discretion, thereby having the capability to process and print daily, weekly, monthly or yearly index reports.

Public access to court records is enhanced with the provision of terminals for public use. These on-line terminals provide the public read only access to public records and the capability to print screen images of index information. Demonstrations of the system have been provided in many courts around the state. Input has been solicited from the Clerk's offices as well as the attorneys and title searchers that use the public side of the system. Several new Circuit Court clerks have made requests for the system.

The Records Indexing System (RIS) has been installed in the following Circuit courts: Madison, Botetourt, Roanoke City, Salem, Frederick and Winchester. Williamsburg/James City Circuit court and York Circuit court are scheduled for installation during mid-1992.

FMS/CMS INTERFACE

An additional twelve general district courts implemented the Financial Management System/Case Management System Interface (FMS/CMS) during the year. This increase in demand has been driven primarily by the fact that the interface is a prerequisite for the Case Management System-Department of Motor Vehicles Interface. To better accommodate the increased interest, new procedures are being developed to implement the CMS/FMS Interface in courts at the same time that training on the FMS is received. This approach is possible since the courts received training on the Case Management System prior to being trained on the Financial Management System. Implementation of this expedited placement of the interface will begin during 1992.

Development of a FMS/CMS Interface for the Circuit Courts is scheduled for development this next year.

CAIS/DMV INTERFACE

Statewide implementation of the interface between the General District Court Case Management System and the Department of Motor Vehicles (CMS/DMV) continued during the year. The interface transmits Abstracts of Convictions via a magnetic tape exchange from the district court to DMV. By year's end, 41 courts were using the interface with nine courts scheduled for implementation in early 1992. As additional courts receive the CMS, FMS and CMS/FMS interface, the installation of the CAIS/DMS interface will follow.

The success of this interface is a direct result of a cooperative working relationship between the Office of the Executive Secretary of the Supreme Court and the Department of Motor Vehicles accompanied by acceptance of the interface by the courts. These factors have made this a cost-effective, efficient project for the District Courts with significant benefits accruing to both the courts and the Department of Motor Vehicles.

CAIS/STATE POLICE INTERFACE

The CAIS/State Police Central Criminal Records Exchange (CCRE) Interface has continued as a pilot operation during this year. The interface is designed to transfer information via a tape exchange from the General District and Circuit Courts to the State Police thereby eliminating the manual preparation of the Central Criminal Records Exchange form (SP-180) by the courts. Two courts, one General District and one Circuit, have participated in the pilot program since its inception with a second circuit court participating briefly to augment the base of data for evaluation. The project is now being reviewed along with plans for eventual statewide implementation.

JURY MANAGEMENT IMPROVEMENTS

Beginning in 1990, the Office of the Executive Secretary (OES), working with the Department of Motor Vehicles and the State Board of Elections (SBE), obtained magnetic tapes containing all licensed drivers and all registered voters statewide. The OES merged and sorted these lists, followed by a series of edits to eliminate duplicates, persons under 18 years of age, invalid locality codes, out-of-state residents, etc. A master list was generated which contained, on average, nearly twice as many citizens as the SBE listing used in the past. This list was initially made available to the circuit courts in late 1990. During 1991, the addition of refined edits and more accurate input data produced a greatly improved list for distribution. By the end of the year, 93 circuit courts (77%) had requested this consolidated juror list from OES. This program has proved to be a cost effective method for expanding the juror availability list in each locality. Depending upon the specific needs of each court, the list is available in a variety of media formats, including hard copy lists, round magnetic tape and tape cartridge and Personal Computer (PC) diskettes.

TAX SET-OFF AND COLLECTION AGENCY PROGRAMS

The CAIS Financial Management System/Department of Taxation Interface was initially developed in 1989. This interface allows the courts to transfer, via a magnetic tape exchange, delinquent accounts receivables to the Department of Taxation for collection as part of the Debt Set-Off Program. The third annual submission was made in November 1991 for 140 courts for amounting to $49 million of delinquent accounts, a fourfold increase over the first submission in 1989. The Debt Set-Off Program has collected around $1.5 million which previously would not have been available.

A Collection Agency Program, initiated in a locality by the Commonwealth Attorney, is the second method used to collect monies owed to the Commonwealth. These programs are currently active in 41 automated courts and have amassed $2.5 million in collections since their inception in 1990.

Each of these debt collection programs is facilitated by the automated Financial Management System which enables clerks' to identify delinquent accounts for reporting to the appropriate collection program. In the absence of automation these activities are extremely labor intensive greatly reducing the program's cost-effectiveness.

FISCAL OVERVIEW OF THE JUDICIARY JUDICIAL SYSTEM EXPENDITURES

Total judicial system expenditures grew by 7.8 percent in fiscal year 1991. Expenditures reached nearly $139 million with the district courts spending $80.5 million or about 58 percent of the total; general district courts expenses constituted around 58% of the total district court costs. The circuit courts expended $34.8 million or about 25 percent of all costs. The figures for circuit courts do not include the $5.1 million expended in support of the operation of the circuit court clerks' offices and their 790 staff members. The Court of Appeals constituted only 2 percent of total judicial system costs for FY 1991. See Tables 1 and 2.

The district courts experienced the greatest percent increase in expenditures (9.9 percent) during the fiscal year. Circuit Court expenditures increased by 7.8 percent and expenditures in the Supreme Court rose 3.9 percent. The Court of Appeals experienced a 2.0 percent decline in expenditures, while in the magistrate system costs declined by less than one percent. Table 3.

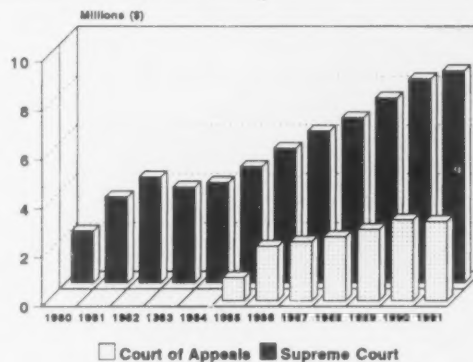

Among expenditures for trial, pre-trial and appellate processes in the circuit courts, the greatest single cost category was the criminal fund with 44 percent of the total. Salaries and fringe benefits together constituted 50 percent. In the district courts, salaries and fringe benefits made up 68 percent of the costs, criminal fund 16 percent, and involuntary mental commitment costs another 10 percent. Criminal Fund (CF) expenditures ($28.2 million) accounted for 20 percent of total judicial expenditures in FY 1991, up from 18.9 percent the previous year. Involuntary Mental Commitment Fund (IMC) expenditures comprised 5.8 percent of all expenditures, a .9 percent increase from FY 1990. For more detail on Criminal Fund and Involuntary Mental Commitment expenditures, refer to the separate sections in Part Three of the Year in Review later in this report.

BUDGET REDUCTION EFFORTS

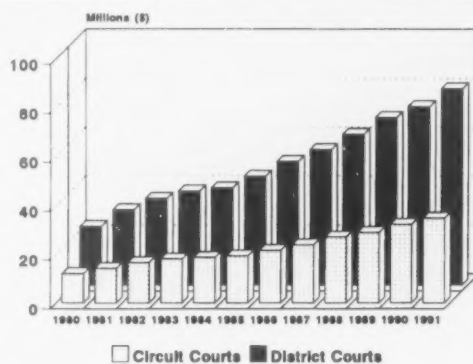

During fiscal year 1991, the judicial system continued its efforts to cut costs in order to operate within the reduced budget appropriated by the 1991 session of the General Assembly. The cost saving measures affecting personnel, education, and the automated case processing system contributed $14.7 million towards the Governor's request for major cost cutting measures for the 1990-1992 biennium. The savings were generated through continued implementation of the following cost saving measures:

- Implementation of a hiring freeze (holding vacancies open for 10 weeks in 1990-1991 and 12 weeks in

The Judicial Council, Committee on District Courts, and the Supreme Court are working together to develop methods which will enable the court system to meet the demands of the public while preserving the integrity of the judiciary with the increasingly limited resources available.

AWARDS RECOGNITION PROGRAM

An Awards Recognition Program was adopted by the Committee on District Courts in 1991 for personnel in the district courts and magistrate system. As employee's have been forced to deal with increasing workloads and associated stress without the benefit of increased compensation, the Committee felt that the implementation of this program would be an avenue for court personnel to receive needed and deserved recognition and appreciation.

The adopted program consists of state-wide and local level awards. At the state level there are four award categories: Outstanding Career Service, Distinguished Service, Innovative Advance, and Personal Achievement. Recipients of the awards will receive a commemorative plaque and have their names reported in Court Commentaries and the annual State of the Judiciary Report. Those receiving honorable recognition will be awarded a certificate signed by the Chief Justice.

The local program is optional and is intended to enable managers to recognize excellence from individuals and/or employee teams. Suggested forms of recognition include handwritten notes, awards certificates or team celebration events. The overall objective of this program is to let employees know that their efforts are appreciated.

COUNCIL ON COMMUNITY SERVICES FOR YOUTH AND FAMILIES

A deepening awareness of the myriad of needs associated with "troubled" youth coupled with escalating costs and frustrated families, led the Secretary of Health and Human Resources to create the Council on Youth and Families in 1990. The Council was charged with improving services for youth with emotional and/or behavioral problems along with controlling the escalating costs of residential care for the state and local governments. Special attention was directed toward young children at risk of developing emotional or behavioral problems, those receiving intervention from more than one agency, and those currently housed in residential facilities.

The overarching theme of the Council's response to this mandate was to promote a view of the child as a community responsibility. This philosophy recognized and promoted interagency cooperation and coordination in service delivery. The Council's specific proposals outlined the required steps necessary for achievement of this goal.

These proposals articulated by the Council became the basis of the Comprehensive Services Act for At-Risk Youth and Families. This legislation was enacted by the 1992 General Assembly.

An issue of particular concern to the Council was that involving community early intervention programs. To achieve that end, the 1992 General Assembly authorized the establishment of a $5 million state trust fund which will become available January 1, 1993 for the funding of these early intervention approaches.

Additionally, a state pool of funds will be available July 1, 1993 to provide needed residential or nonresidential services for at-risk youth. The pool will be created by the consolidation of nine separate funding streams that are currently available for this purpose. It is expected that this change will greatly enhance the community's ability to supply appropriate services as well as granting communities much needed flexibility.

Passage of this new legislation is viewed as a watershed in how the Commonwealth and its communities address solutions for these youth and their families. It is expected that this coordinated approach will reduce past conflicts and greatly enhance the state's ability to effectively meet the needs of this population.

Section A — Part Two

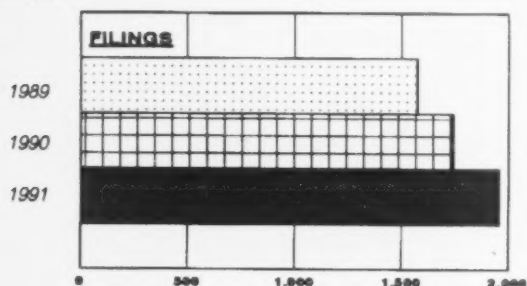

VIRGINIA COURTS

Virginia Courts, Part Two of the Judiciary's Year In Review, presents an overview of the activity in the courts of the Commonwealth during 1991. Following a summary of the jurisdiction and structure of each court, annual caseload or other activity statistics are provided for the Supreme Court of Virginia, Court of Appeals, Circuit and District courts, and for the magistrate system. In many instances, data are provided at the circuit and district levels for comparison purposes.

SUMMARY OF 1991 CASELOADS IN VIRGINIA COURTS

The Supreme Court of Virginia had an increase of 12.4% in the number of filings in 1991 which reached 1,956. There were 1,987 total cases acted on during the year, an increase of 23.4% over 1990. At the end of the year, only 84 granted cases were waiting to be heard.

The General District Courts had over 3.2 million cases filed in 1991. This represents an increase of 2.6% from 1990. Cases disposed grew by 2.9% and stood at 3.3 million by year's end. There were nearly 68,000 more cases concluded than filed during the year.

The Court of Appeals had a 12% increase in the number of cases filed in 1991 for a total of 2,343 cases. Dispositions increased 7.9% reaching 2,308 or 168 more than the number of filings. There was an increase of 6.9% in the number of appeals disposed with 931 being conducted in 1991.

The Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts had an increase of 4.8% in the number of cases filed in 1991 to total 339,456 compared to 323,894 in 1990. Cases reaching disposition totaled 336,183, an increase of 5.5% from 1990 levels.

The Circuit Courts had 216,915 cases filed in 1991, an increase of 5.3% over the filings in 1990. Dispositions grew by 7.6% during the year and reached 207,415 cases. At the end of 1991, there were 201,985 cases pending, up 5.4% from year end 1990.

The Magistrate System issued 916,418 processes during 1991, a decrease of 5.8% over 1990. Transactions totaled over 1.2 million, down 13.0% over transactions in 1989. The Magistrates logged over 1.1 million duty hours in 1991 to handle this activity demand.

SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA

Jurisdiction and Structure

The number of Virginians selected to serve on the state's highest bench (since 1788) rose to 84 with the investiture of Justice Barbara M. Keenan on July 2, 1991. Justice Keenan replaced retiring Justice Charles S. Russell, who had served on the court since 1982. Justice Keenan holds the distinction of having served on all four levels of Virginia's court system.

In Virginia, the primary mission of the Supreme Court is to review decisions of lower courts in which appeals have been allowed. These decisions fall basically into two categories: 1) decisions of lower courts in which questions of proper application of statutory or common law are raised; and 2) decisions of lower courts based on questions of constitutionality.

The Supreme Court's original jurisdiction may be invoked by way of petition for mandamus, prohibition or habeas corpus. Appellate jurisdiction is invoked by appeal or writ of error attacking the judgment of a trial court. The Court hears appeals from circuit courts involving all civil matters (except domestic relations), criminal cases in which the death penalty has been imposed, habeas corpus and appeals from the State Corporation Commission.

The Supreme Court may also become involved in matters of judicial censure, retirement, or removal. Subject to some statutory limitations, cases decided by the Court of Appeals may be appealed to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court may, on its own motion or that of the Court of Appeals, certify a case originally appealed to the Court of Appeals for review by the Supreme Court before it has been determined by the Court of Appeals.

The Court meets for five-day sessions beginning in September of each year and continuing approximately every seventh week thereafter until completion of its June docket. There is no July session. During the recesses between Court sessions, the Justices conduct extensive legal research in the cases awaiting decision, draft and review opinions, study cases in which petitions for appeal have been filed, conduct hearings on petitions for appeal and attend to administrative duties.

The Supreme Court is authorized to make rules of practice and procedure and to oversee changes in the organization of the lower courts. In addition to its appellate functions of examining results reached in lower courts and of redefining and developing the body of state law, the Supreme Court is also responsible for the general supervision of the entire Virginia Judicial System.

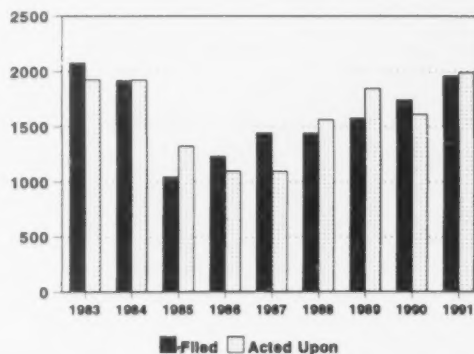

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

In 1991, the number of filings in the Supreme Court of Virginia increased to 1,956, a 12.4 percent jump from the 1,740 filings the year before. See Table 4 and Display 12. Among appeals, which increased from 1,242 to 1,412, criminal appeals increased almost 26 percent from 536 in 1990 to 676 in 1991. Civil appeals increased from 586 to 644, a rise of nearly ten percent, while the number of habeas corpus appeals fell from 79 to 58. Among original jurisdiction cases, the number of writs of mandamus increased from 83 to 97, while the number of writs of prohibition decreased from 14 to 9. Table 5.

Display 12

SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA Petitions Filed and Acted Upon 1983-1991

The total number of cases acted upon increased from 1,610 in 1990 to 1,987 in 1991, a rise of more than 23 percent. The total number of appeals granted and refused grew from 1,135 to 1,437, an increase of 27 percent, while the total number of original jurisdiction cases acted upon rose from 475 to 550, an increase of 16 percent. There were 201 cases granted in 1991, among which were 164 civil petitions, 14 civil and criminal appeals granted from the Court of Appeals, and 16 cases that were appeals of right.

There were 144 cases decided by opinion last year while another 110 cases were decided by orders. This was a 20 percent decrease in the number of cases decided by opinion and an increase of 75 percent in the number decided by orders. In 47 percent of the cases decided by opinion, judgment of the lower court was affirmed, whereas 44 percent of the cases had been affirmed in 1990. The number of opinions in which judgments were reversed or remanded in 1991 fell from 90 to 73, a decrease of 23 percent over the 1990 figure. Table 4.

The number of pending petitions at year's end decreased from 492 in 1990 to 389 in 1991. Display 13. The number of cases waiting to be argued before the Supreme Court stood at 84 at the end of the year. This was up 20 cases from the 64 cases waiting to be argued at the end of 1990. See Table 6 and Display 14. The goal of the Supreme Court is to dispose of all cases within 12 months of the filing of the petition for appeal. In 1991, the average case took approximately nine months from filing to final disposition by the court.

SUPREME COURT OF VIRGINIA Cases Waiting to be Argued 1983-1991

THE COURT OF APPEALS

The Court of Appeals completed its seventh full year of operation in 1991. The Court is composed of ten judges who sit in panels of three in various regions of the state. The Chief Judge is elected by a majority of the Court's judges to serve a four-year term.

Last year Judge Marvin F. Cole retired from the Court on May 1, 1991. Eleventh district juvenile and domestic relations district court Judge Larry G. Elder was elected by the General Assembly to replace him. Judge Barbara M. Keenan, an original appointee to the Court of Appeals, was elected in July 1991 to a seat on the Supreme Court of Virginia. Her replacement on the Court is Judge Richard S. Bray, who came to his seat from the Portsmouth Circuit Court.

The Court of Appeals has authority to hear appeals as a matter of right from:

- any final judgment, order, or decree of a circuit court involving affirmance or annulment of a marriage, divorce, custody, spousal or child support, or control or disposition of a child, as well as other domestic relations cases;
- any final decision of the Virginia Workers' Compensation Commission (a state agency responsible for handling workers' compensation claims);
- any final decision of a circuit court on appeal from a decision of an administrative agency (example: the Department of Health); and
- any interlocutory order granting, dissolving, or denying an injunction or adjudicating the principles of a cause in any of the cases listed above.

The Court of Appeals has authority to consider petitions for appeal from:

- final orders of conviction in criminal and traffic matters except where a death penalty is imposed;
- final decisions of a circuit court on an application for a concealed weapons permit; and
- certain preliminary rulings in felony cases when requested by the Commonwealth.

The Court of Appeals has original jurisdiction to issue writs of mandamus, prohibition, and habeas corpus in any case over which the Court would have appellate jurisdiction.

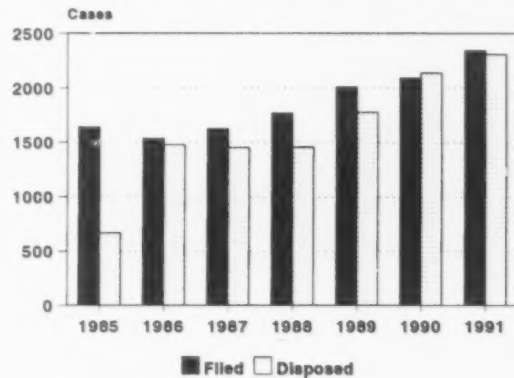

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

In 1991, the Court of Appeals had 2,343 case filings, a 12 percent increase from the number filed in 1990. The number of criminal appeals rose 3.3 percent from 1,547 to 1,797 last year. The number of domestic relations appeals decreased slightly from 251 filed in 1990 to 247 filed in 1991. Industrial Commission appeals rose by 15.6 percent over 1990 with 200 petitions filed. The number of Administrative Agency appeals rose in 1991 from 40 to 43 petitions while original jurisdiction petitions fell by 2 to 21 petitions. See Table 7 and Displays 15 and 16.

Display 15

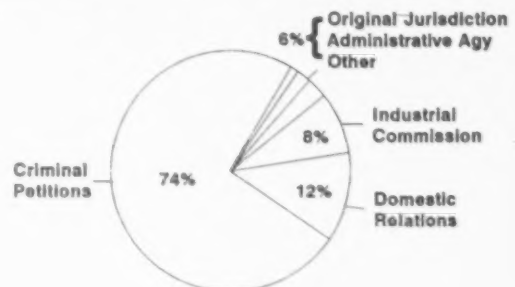

COURT OF APPEALS OF VIRGINIA Cases Filed and Disposed 1985-1991

The number of cases disposed of by the Court of Appeals also grew from 2,140 cases in 1990 to 2,308 in 1991, a 7.9 percent rise. A significant proportion of this increase came in the number of opinions rendered. In 1990, the Court rendered 564 opinions (both published and unpublished). That figure rose to 695 in 1991, reflecting a 23 percent increase.

Display 16

COURT OF APPEALS OF VIRGINIA Distribution of Cases Filed 1991

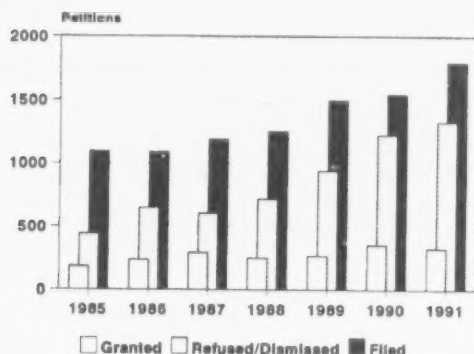

The Court of Appeals considered 250 more criminal petitions in 1991 than it did the previous year. The number of criminal petitions granted declined from 354 in 1990 to 327 in 1991. With this decrease, the percent of petitions granted fell slightly in 1991 (18.6 percent versus 22.4 percent in 1990). Table 8 and Display 17.

Appeals of right totaled 503 in 1991 compared to 485 in 1990. Of these cases, 247 or 49 percent were domestic relations cases and 200 or 40 percent were industrial commission cases. The remaining cases were divided between administrative agency matters (43) and other cases (13). Table 8.

Display 17

COURT OF APPEALS OF VIRGINIA Criminal Petitions 1985-1991

Of the 931 appeals disposed of by the Court of Appeals in 1991, 255 (27 percent) were by published opinion, and 440 (47 percent) were by unpublished opinion. A total of 236 (26 percent) were disposed of by order. Table 7.

There were 722 cases appealed from the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court of Virginia in 1991. This represents a 19.7 percent increase from the 603 appealed in 1990.

CIRCUIT COURTS

Jurisdiction and Structure

Circuit Courts are Virginia's trial courts of general jurisdiction and have the authority to try a full range of civil and criminal cases. The circuit court system consists of 31 judicial circuits encompassing 122 separate circuit courts in the various counties and cities of the state. In 1991, there were 133 judges and 122 locally elected clerks serving the court.

In civil cases, the circuit court has concurrent jurisdiction with the general district court over claims from $1,000 to $10,000 (as of July 1, 1992) and exclusive original jurisdiction over all equity matters including divorce cases, disputes concerning wills and estates, and controversies involving property.

In criminal cases, the circuit court has jurisdiction over the trial of all felonies (offenses that may be punished by confinement in the State Prison) and of those misdemeanors (offenses carrying a penalty of not more than twelve months in jail) originating from grand jury indictments. The circuit court also has jurisdiction over juveniles aged fifteen and older who are charged with felonies and whose cases have been certified by the judge of a juvenile and domestic relations district court for trial in circuit court.

The circuit court has appellate jurisdiction over all appeals from general district court in civil and criminal cases and from juvenile and domestic relations district court in matters originating in that court. Appeals are heard de novo, that is, cases from these district courts are tried from the beginning as though there had been no prior trial. The circuit courts also hear appeals from administrative agencies.

In 1991, the General Assembly created two additional judgeships to assist with caseload increases in the Seventh and Twenty-sixth Circuits; two more circuit court judgeships were authorized by the 1992 General Assembly to be effective July 1, 1992 in the Eleventh and Nineteenth Circuits. Judges of the circuit courts are elected for an eight-year term by a majority vote of both houses of the General Assembly. Interim appointments are made by the Governor. There are at least two judges serving each circuit and as many as 14 serving the larger circuits. The chief judge of the circuit is elected by vote of the judges serving the circuit. Judges are required to reside in the circuit they serve and must have been admitted to the Virginia Bar at least five years prior to their appointment to the bench.

The clerk of the circuit court is a constitutional officer and is elected to an eight-year term by the voters of the locality. The clerk handles the administrative functions of the court and also has authority to probate wills, grant administration of estates, and appoint guardians. The clerk is the custodian of the court records and the clerk's office where deeds are recorded and marriage licenses issued.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

In 1991, 216,915 cases were commenced in the circuit courts of Virginia, an increase of 5.3 percent from the previous year. Twenty-eight of the 31 circuits showed increases in the number of commenced cases. Cases declined 3.7 percent in the Fifth, 3.4 percent in the Twenty-fourth, and 1.5 percent in the Twenty-fifth Circuit. The Seventeenth, Twenty-third, and Twenty-sixth Circuits showed increases in commenced cases of less than one percent. The greatest percentage increases occurred in the Twenty-ninth Circuit (22.9 percent) and in the First Circuit (21.7 percent). Commenced cases grew 5.9 percent in urban circuits, compared to a rise of 4.5 percent in rural circuits. See Table 11.

Display 18

CIRCUIT COURTS HISTORICAL SUMMARY Cases Commenced and Concluded 1980-1991

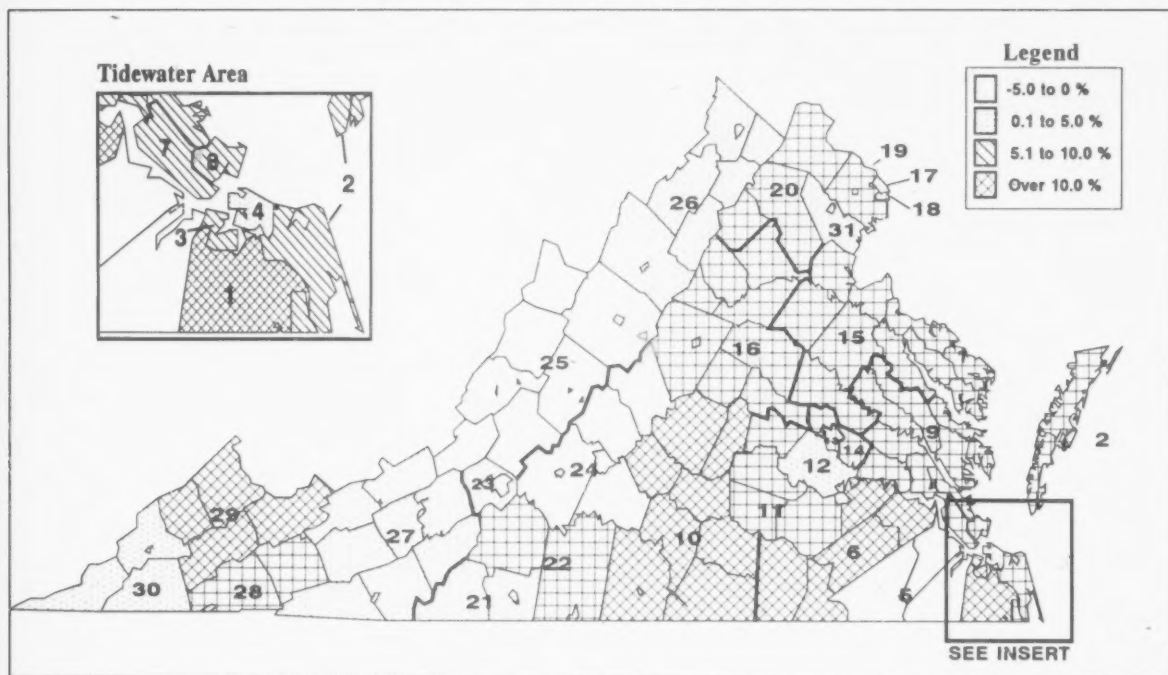

Statewide, the number of criminal cases rose 8.0 percent from 97,561 in 1990 to 105,405 in 1991. In urban areas, the increase was 9.6 percent, while in rural areas, criminal cases grew by 6.1 percent. There were 111,510 civil cases commenced in 1991, an increase of 3,128 new cases from 1990, or 2.9 percent. As has been true for several years, the Nineteenth Circuit reported the highest number of commenced cases (21,466) of any circuit while the Sixth Circuit reported the fewest (2,650). The Nineteenth Circuit accounted for nearly 10 percent of the entire circuit caseload in the state. The circuit courts in Virginia Beach (2nd Circuit), Norfolk (4th Circuit), Richmond (13th Circuit), and Fairfax (19th Circuit) accounted for 30.2 percent of all commenced cases in 1991. These circuits comprise 28.1 percent of the Commonwealth's 1990 population according to the U. S. Census Bureau.

The average commenced caseload per judge during the year totaled 1,631 cases, with an average of 838 cases

CIRCUIT COURTS
Commenced Caseload Distribution 1991

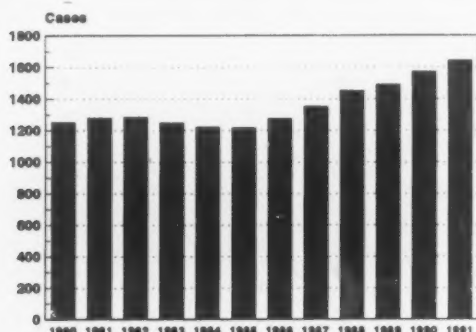

During 1991 there were 207,415 cases concluded in the circuit courts, 9,500 fewer cases than were commenced during the year. The total number of cases concluded represented an increase of 7.6 percent from the number concluded in 1990. An average of 1,560 cases were concluded by each circuit court judge in 1991, up from 1,471 per judge in 1990. An average of 797 civil cases were concluded per judge and 763 criminal cases per judge were cleared from the dockets in 1991.

Commenced cases continue to outpace cases concluded, explaining why the number of cases pending in the circuit courts have risen from 191,564 at the end of 1990 to 201,985 by year end 1991. This represented an increase of 54 cases pending per judge. Therefore, by the year's end, there was an average of 1,519 cases pending per circuit judge. Table 21.

The number of juries impaneled statewide rose from 4,214 in 1990 to 4,600 in 1991, a 9.2 percent increase. This represents 35 juries impaneled per circuit court judge. The number of jury days recorded statewide increased by 8.5 percent, from 5,634 in 1990 to 6,115 in 1991. Statewide, the number of jury days averaged 46 days per judge. Table 22.

Civil Cases

In 1991, 111,510 new civil cases were filed in the circuit courts in Virginia. This represented an increase of over 3,000 more cases than were filed in 1990. See Table 11. The circuit court judges averaged 838 civil cases each in 1991, which represents a slight increase from the 827 they averaged in 1990. See Table 17. In the urban circuits, the average was 883 cases per judge while the judges in the rural circuits averaged 776 cases each.

Display 22
CIRCUIT COURTS - CIVIL CASES
Commenced Caseload Distribution 1991

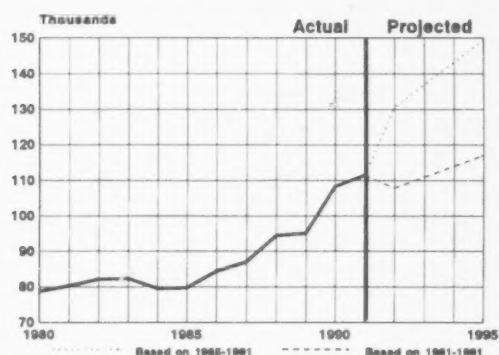

There were 57,176 law cases (or 51 percent of the total civil caseload), 33,196 divorce cases (30 percent), 17,886 equity cases (16 percent), 4,402 appeals from the general district courts (4 percent), and 3,252 appeals from the juvenile and domestic relations courts (3 percent).

The Nineteenth Circuit reported 14,318 civil cases in 1991, the highest number among all circuits and 12.8 percent of the civil cases reported statewide. The Twelfth Circuit had the highest average civil caseload per judge, 1,242 cases, while the Fifth Circuit averaged the fewest civil cases per judge, 591 cases. See Table 11.

Display 23
CIRCUIT COURT CIVIL FILINGS
Projections for 1995

As Table A-10 shows, civil cases have risen significantly every year since 1985; in fact, between 1985 and 1991, they have increased nearly 40 percent. The civil caseload is expected to continue to increase in the years ahead. Based on historical data, estimates for circuit court civil filings in 1995 range from 117,111 cases (if 1981-1991 data are used to make the projection) to 149,607 cases (if 1985-1991 data are used). See Display 23.

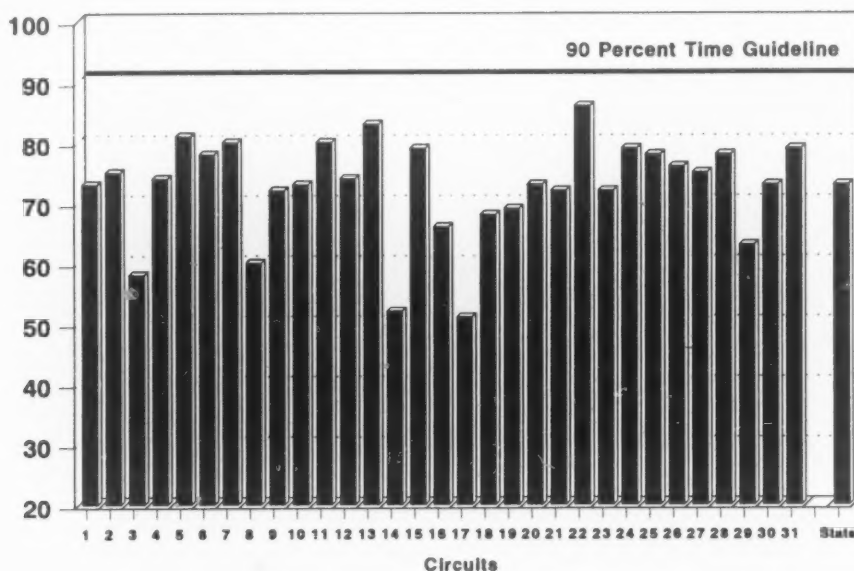

There were 105,962 civil cases concluded in the circuit courts during 1991, 9,651 more cases than were concluded in 1990. The number of civil cases disposed by judge trials rose from 12,575 cases in 1990 to 14,441 cases in 1991, an increase of 14.8 percent. This was accompanied by a 10.2 percent increase in the number of cases concluded by settlement, non suit, or voluntary dismissal. The number of cases concluded by jury trials was 1,575 or 18.3 percent more than the previous year. Therefore, just over 15 percent of civil cases concluded in the circuit courts were disposed by a judge or jury trial (13.6 percent by judge trials and 1.5 percent by jury trial). Approximately 32 percent ended through settlement or dismissal of the case and another 15.0 percent were concluded by a decree on disposition. A total of 10.6 percent were concluded through review of a commissioner's report and 7.2 percent and 5.0 percent of cases, respectively, were purged under the two-year and five-year rules. The circuit court judges concluded an average of 838 civil cases each in 1991. See Table on page F-64.

CIRCUIT COURTS 1991

Civil Cases (Excluding Divorce & Purged)

Percent Concluded Within 12 Months of Filing

About 66 percent of the civil cases concluded in 1991 ended within 12 months of filing. This was down from 67 percent in the previous year within the same time frame. The Twenty-second Circuit concluded the largest percentage of civil cases (excluding divorce cases and cases purged under the two and five year rules) within 12 months (86 percent). This circuit comes closest to meeting the voluntary case processing time guidelines adopted by the Judicial Council which recommend the disposition of 90 percent of cases filed within one year. The Seventeenth Circuit had the lowest percentage of civil cases concluded within the 12-month time frame with 51 percent. The percentage of civil cases concluded within 24 months of filing decreased from 81.8 percent in 1990 to 79.8 percent in 1991. See Tables 12 and 14.

Criminal Cases

The total number of criminal cases initiated in the circuit courts during 1991 was 105,405. This represents an 8.0 percent increase over the previous year total of 97,561 cases. This rise in overall cases was due primarily to the 10.2 percent growth in class 3 - 6 felony cases. Class 1 and 2 felonies increased by 2.6 percent in 1991 while misdemeanors rose 5.0 percent. Only five of the 31 circuits showed decreases in the number of commenced criminal cases. The declines ranged from 0.4 percent in the Thirtieth Circuit to 7.1 percent in the Fifth Circuit. The largest percentage increase occurred in the Twenty-ninth Circuit where criminal cases commenced grew from 1,125 to 1,665 or 48.0 percent. Table 11.

The criminal caseload has grown more rapidly over the last ten years than the civil caseload. Between 1981 and 1991, criminal cases increased nearly 74 percent, while the number of civil cases grew 39 percent. See Table 10. If current growth rates continue, by 1995 criminal cases are projected to increase up to an additional 39 percent to over 147,000 cases a year. See Display 26

The 131 circuit court judges averaged 793 criminal cases commenced in 1991, up from 746 cases in 1990. The judges in urban circuits averaged 759 cases each while those in rural circuits averaged 840 cases per judge. The Fourth Circuit again reported having the largest number of criminal cases of any circuit, 8,230 cases. The Nineteenth Circuit was second with 7,148 cases commenced while 6,577 criminal cases were initiated in the Thirteenth Circuit. The Twenty-second had the highest average number of criminal cases per judge of any of the 31 circuit courts with 1,281 cases per judge. The Nineteenth Circuit had the lowest number of criminal cases per judge at 550 cases. Table 16.

CIRCUIT COURTS - CRIMINAL CASES Commenced Caseload Distribution 1991

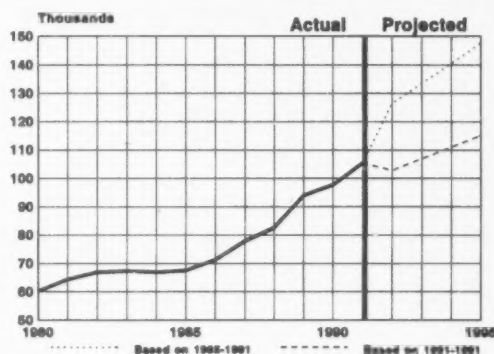

The number of criminal cases concluded increased from 96,394 cases in 1990 to 101,453 cases in 1991, a 5.2 percent gain. Class 3 - 6 felonies ("other felonies") increased by 5.4 percent while misdemeanor cases concluded rose 6.5 percent. Class 1 and 2 felonies decreased by 5.2 percent. The statewide average stood at 763 criminal cases concluded per judge, up from 736 cases in 1990. Table 20.

Display 26

CIRCUIT COURT CRIMINAL FILINGS Projections for 1995

Display 27

CIRCUIT COURTS 1991 Criminal Cases Percent Concluded Within 5 Months of Filing

Of the criminal cases concluded in 1990, 41.7 percent ended in a guilty plea before trial while another 19.3 percent were nolle prossed, dismissed, or withdrawn prior to trial. An additional 6.2 percent of the cases were disposed of by means other than these methods or trial. Thus, 67.2 percent of the cases did not reach trial. Of those cases concluded by trial, 28.8 percent were concluded by a judge trial while 3.9 percent ended following a jury trial. See Table on page F-65.

Well over three-fourths (79.1 percent) of the criminal cases concluded ended within 150 days or five months of initiation. Only 22.1 percent reached conclusion within 30 days of initiation. Another 12.4 percent of criminal cases ended within nine months and 8.6 percent of criminal cases remained open nine months after filing. Table 13.

The vast majority of the criminal cases initiated in 1991 were commenced by indictment, presentation, information, waiver, warrant, or appeal from the district courts. The number of defendants represented by these charges totaled 56,280, for an average of 1.9 charges per defendant. In felony cases, the average was 2.2 charges per defendant while in misdemeanor cases, each defendant averaged 1.5 charges.

Jury Trials

The number of juries impaneled increased 9.2 percent in 1991, from 4,214 in 1990 to 4,600 in 1991. Juries impaneled to hear law, equity, and felony cases increased by 15.2 percent, 10.0 percent, and 6.5 percent, respectively. The number of juries impaneled in misdemeanor cases declined by eight or 2.0 percent. Nearly one half of the juries impaneled were in felony cases.

The judges in the circuit courts averaged 35 juries impaneled each in 1991 compared to 34 in 1989 and 32 in 1990. The Thirteenth Circuit reported the most juries per judge with 58 juries while the Seventh Circuit averaged 17 juries per judge, the lowest among the 31 circuits. The Nineteenth Circuit had the highest number of civil jury days per judge with 42 while the Eighteenth Circuit had the highest number of criminal jury days per judge with 45. See Table 22.

DISTRICT COURTS

Jurisdiction and Structure

In Virginia, the district court system, which became effective in 1973, is comprised of two courts. A variety of criminal, traffic, and civil cases are heard by the general district courts. In criminal matters, the general district courts hear misdemeanor cases and hold preliminary hearings for felony cases. In civil cases, the general district court has exclusive jurisdiction in suits involving amounts of $1,000 or less and concurrent jurisdiction with the circuit courts in suits involving amounts of up to $7,000. Effective July 1, 1992, the concurrent jurisdictional limit will be raised to $10,000 and all cases involving state Occupational Safety and Health Act (OSHA) will be tried in circuit courts rather than the general district courts.

The juvenile and domestic relations district courts have jurisdiction over all proceedings involving minors such as delinquency, juvenile traffic violations, children in need of services, and children who have been abused and neglected. These courts also hear cases involving adults accused of child abuse; offenses against members of their own family; support, visitation, and custody disputes; abandonment of children, foster care and entrustment agreements, court-ordered rehabilitation services, and court consent for certain medical treatment.

More than 3.5 million cases were filed in Virginia's district courts in 1991. This means that approximately 14,324 cases were filed every working day and 71,620 actions were initiated on a weekly basis. Nearly 90 percent of the total new cases filed in the district courts were brought in the state's 77 general district courts. The remaining cases were brought before the state's 69 juvenile and domestic relations district courts and 57 combined district courts. A single clerk's office serves the combined courts by handling the clerical functions of both a general district court and a juvenile and domestic relations district court. As of the end of 1991, the district courts were served by 192 judges and about 1,025 staff in the clerk's offices.

Review of General District Courts 1991 Caseload Activity

There were 3.21 million new cases filed in the general district courts in 1991 representing a 2.6 percent increase over the 3.13 million cases initiated in 1990. The 1991 caseload composition was 51 percent traffic, 34 percent civil and 15 percent criminal. There were 3.24 million hearings held in the general district courts in 1991, nearly one percent more than in 1990. The number of cases concluded increased from 3.19 million dispositions in 1990 to 3.28 million in 1991, an increase of 2.9 percent. Table 23.

GENERAL DISTRICT COURT NEW CASES

Percent Change by District 1990-1991

As in 1990, the Nineteenth District (Fairfax County and the City of Fairfax) reported the highest number of new cases: 343,663. This represents 10.7 percent of the statewide caseload. The Thirteenth District (Richmond) had the next highest caseload with 276,313 new cases while the Fourth District (Norfolk) had 200,555 filings. See Table 26. Of the 32 districts, 22 experienced growth in new cases. See Table 25. These increases ranged from only a few cases in the Twenty-third District to 15.5 percent in the Eighteenth District. The Fourteenth District experienced a 15.3 percent rise in new cases. The greatest percentage decreases in caseload occurred in the Second District, where filings declined 7.9 percent, and the Fifth District, where cases decreased 5.5 percent. The general district court caseload is expected to continue to increase dramatically in the years ahead. Based on data from 1981 through 1991, estimates for general district court new case filings in 1995 range from 3.6 million to 3.9 million cases, increases from 1991 of up to 20 percent. See Display 35.

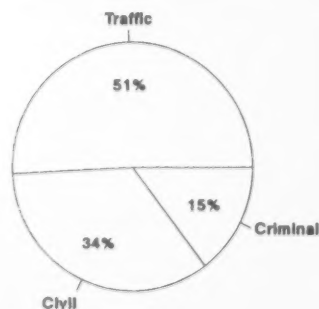

The 114 general district court judges averaged 28,245 new cases in 1991, 961 more than in 1990. They also had an average of 28,512 hearings each in 1991, a 1.8 percent rise. Judges in the urban districts averaged 31,374 new cases each while those in the rural districts averaged 24,496 new cases per judge. With 36,404 new cases each, judges of the Fourteenth District (Henrico) experienced the highest per judge caseload. Table 27.

New criminal cases decreased 2.7 percent in the general district courts in 1991 from the previous year. The number of capias/show cause actions fell less than one percent while the number of misdemeanors declined 5.4 percent. Felony cases rose 8.4 percent. The number of hearings in criminal cases decreased by less than one percent to total 950,296 in 1991.

General district court judges handled an average of 4,143 new criminal cases each in 1991. This was 76 fewer cases than in 1990. Judges in the urban courts averaged 4,222 new cases each while those in the rural districts averaged 4,048 new criminal cases.

The Fourth District (Norfolk) reported the highest number of criminal cases with 34,145 cases in 1991 followed by the Thirteenth District (Richmond) with 33,873 cases, and the Nineteenth District (Fairfax) with 28,645 cases. The judges of the Twenty-second District handled the highest number of criminal cases per judge with 6,153 cases each while the Eleventh District had the largest number of hearings per judge with 13,312 hearings each in criminal cases. Table 28.

Display 33
GENERAL DISTRICT COURTS
New Traffic Cases Distribution 1991

New traffic cases fell by less than one percent in 1991 to 1.63 million cases. New traffic misdemeanors decreased by 5,261 cases or 1.9 percent and traffic infractions declined by nearly 1,000 cases or less than one percent. There were 109 more traffic felonies reported in 1991 than in 1990 while capias/show cause actions declined by 3,579 cases or nearly 10 percent.

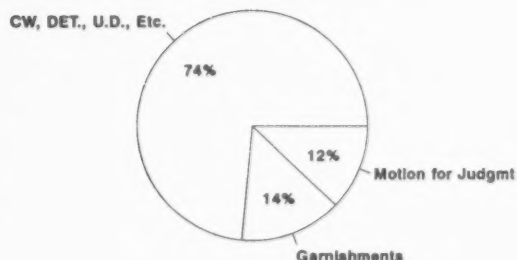

The Nineteenth District reported the most new traffic cases with 253,904 cases. In fact, the Nineteenth District accounted for 15.5 percent of all new traffic cases and 13 percent of the traffic hearings in the state. The Nineteenth District also held the largest number of hearings among the districts with 202,209 hearings.

The general district court judges averaged 14,360 new traffic cases each in 1991 and held an average of 13,594 hearings each. Judges in the urban districts had an average of 15,019 new traffic cases each while the judges in the rural districts averaged 13,570 cases each. The Nineteenth District had the highest average number of traffic cases per judge with 25,390 cases each while the Twenty-first District had the lowest with 6,601 cases. Table 29.

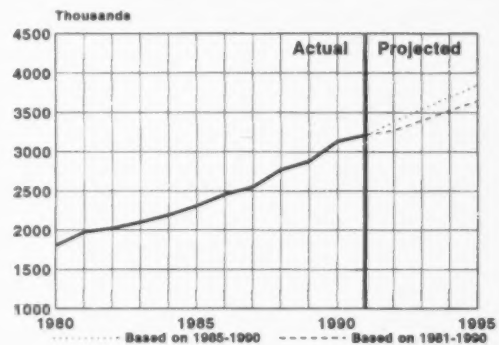

There were 1.1 million new civil cases filed in the general district courts in 1991. This represents a 10.4 percent increase from the previous year. The courts held 746,658 hearings in civil cases and concluded 1.1 million cases. The Thirteenth District reported the highest number of new civil cases with 178,337 cases and the highest number of civil hearings with 114,597 cases in 1991. The Thirteenth percent from 631,600 in 1990 to 684,133 in 1991. The juvenile and domestic relations district courts were able to conclude 336,183 cases or 99 percent of their new cases in 1991. Table 24.

District accounted for 16.1 percent of all new civil cases filed and 15.3 percent of all civil hearings held in the state. The judges in the general district courts averaged 9,742 new civil cases and held an average of 6,564 hearings each in 1991. The Thirteenth District averaged 22,292 new civil cases and 14,325 hearings held per judge, the highest of any district. Judges in the urban district courts averaged 12,132 new civil cases each while those in the rural district courts averaged 6,878 new civil cases per judge. Table 30.

As in the previous years, juvenile cases (201,700) comprised the majority of the J&DR cases, accounting for 59.4 percent of the total caseload. See Table 32. This was 5.1 percent or nearly 10,000 more cases than the previous year. Domestic relations cases grew by 4.5 percent or nearly 6,000 cases.

The Second District reported the highest number of juvenile and domestic relations cases with 24,129 cases and the highest number of hearings with 47,760. See Table 33. All but four of the 32 districts reported caseload increases ranging from under one percent in the Twenty-eighth District to 12.7 percent in the Eighteenth District. The largest percentage decline occurred the Tenth District where the juvenile caseload dropped 5.4 percent. Table 31.

Display 38

JUVENILE AND DOMESTIC RELATIONS

New Cases Distribution 1991

In 1991, J&DR judges had on the average 201 more new cases each filed than in 1990, growing from 4,193 cases per judge in 1990 to 4,394 cases each in 1991. In the urban districts, the average per judge caseload increased from 4,389 cases in 1990 to 4,628 cases in 1991, a 5.4 percent rise. The average per judge caseload in the rural districts increased from 3,993 cases in 1990 to 4,156 cases in 1991, a 4.1 percent gain.

The number of new juvenile cases rose 5.1 percent, from 192,003 cases in 1990 to 201,700 cases in 1991. Juvenile traffic cases dropped by 6.1 percent (3,431 cases) while delinquency cases rose 5.6 percent (3,227 cases) and custody/visitation cases increased 12.7 percent (9,101 cases). Status offenses increased by 11.6 percent from 6,916 to 7,716 cases.

Display 39
JUVENILE AND DOMESTIC RELATIONS
DISTRICT COURTS
New Juvenile Cases Distribution 1991

In 1991, the number of custody/visitation cases accounted for more than any other juvenile caseload category. The percentage of custody/visitation cases increased from 37 percent in 1990 to 40 percent in 1991. Delinquency cases accounted for 30 percent of the total juvenile caseload while traffic cases made up 26 percent. Status offenses made up approximately four percent of the total.

As in 1990, the Nineteenth District reported the highest number of new juvenile cases with 17,790 cases and accounted for 8.8 percent of all the juvenile cases in the state. The Second District had the second highest number of juvenile cases with 14,943 cases. The Nineteenth District and the Second District taken together represented 16.2 percent of the state's juvenile caseload. Table 34.

The judges from the juvenile and domestic relations district courts averaged 2,611 juvenile cases in 1991, up from the previous year's average of 2,485 cases. Judges in the urban districts averaged 2,843 juvenile cases each while rural districts averaged 2,374 cases per judge.

The number of new domestic relations cases increased 4.5 percent, from 131,891 cases in 1990 to 137,756 cases in 1991. This is primarily due to a jump of 10.3 percent or 2,842 cases in capias/show cause actions. The number of felonies increased by 9.9 percent or 635 cases, while civil support cases rose by 4.2 percent or over 2,000 cases. Criminal support cases declined by 4.5 percent or nearly 6,000 cases, while the number of misdemeanors fell by less than one percent or only 151 cases.

In 1991, civil support cases accounted for about 48.5 percent of the domestic relations caseload while capias/show cause actions represented another 23.3 percent. Misdemeanors accounted for 22.4 percent of the caseload while felonies accounted for 5.1 percent and criminal support less than one percent.

The Second District reported the largest number of domestic relations cases with 9,186 cases in 1991. The Fourth District reported more hearings held in domestic relations cases than any other district with 17,480 cases. However, District 2-A again displayed the highest average domestic relations caseload per judge with 5,568 cases and 11,612 cases of hearings held per judge. Only one-fourth of one judge's time is allocated to serve District 2-A. This fact somewhat obscures the true per judge measures for the district. Nevertheless, for the portion of one judgeship available, the average cases and hearings per judge substantially exceeded the statewide averages. Judges in the urban districts each averaged 1,785 new domestic relations cases while judges in the rural districts averaged 1,782 cases. See Table 35.

Caseloads in the juvenile and domestic relations district courts should continue to rise in the future. Various estimates of 1995 caseloads based on historical data range from 374,000 to 416,000 cases, representing an increase from 1991 levels of up to 23 percent. Display 41.

THE MAGISTRATE SYSTEM

Jurisdiction and Structure

The office of magistrate traces its development through centuries of English and American history. Many of the duties now performed by magistrates were once carried out by justices of the peace. However, the office of justice of the peace was phased out in 1974, and the Virginia magistrate system was established as part of a statewide court reorganization plan. While magistrates are not judges possessing trial jurisdiction, they are an integral part of the judicial system and are judicial officers of the Commonwealth of Virginia. The principal function of the magistrate is to provide an independent, unbiased review of complaints brought to the office by police officers, sheriffs, deputies, and citizens. Magistrates are not police officers nor are they in any way connected with law enforcement. Instead, magistrates are issuing officers who serve as a buffer between law enforcement and society. Most magistrates are not lawyers; however, they are specially trained to perform such duties as issuing search warrants, subpoenas, arrest warrants, summonses, and setting bail. In addition, magistrates assist the public by providing information on the judicial system processes and procedures.

Chief circuit court judges are responsible for appointing magistrates who serve for four year terms and may be reappointed. The number of magistrates in each district is authorized by the Committee on District Courts and must be sufficient for the effective administration of justice. Each district has a chief magistrate who exercises direct daily supervision over the magistrates within the district. The large urban areas generally utilize full-time magistrates who work on a shift basis to maintain an open office twenty-four hours a day. In contrast, the majority of rural magistrates work on an availability basis and are contacted as needed by citizens or law enforcement officers. In some areas, magistrates work a fixed schedule during the day and are "on call" during night hours.

Magistrates cannot take any action unless authority has been expressly conferred by statute. Magistrates have the following powers:

- To issue arrest warrants.
- To issue search warrants.
- To admit to bail or commit to jail.
- To issue warrants and subpoenas.
- To issue civil warrants.
- To administer oaths and take acknowledgements.
- To act as conservator of the peace.
- To accept prepayment for traffic and certain minor misdemeanor offenses.

- To issue temporary detention orders.

As a general rule, magistrates may exercise their authority only within the borders of their judicial district.

Review of 1991 Magistrate Activity

More than 1.2 million requests for assistance and processes were handled by Virginia's 32 chief magistrates and 446 magistrates during 1991. This represents a decrease of 44,850 requests or 3.5 percent from the previous year. In response, magistrates issued 916,418 processes, or 75 percent of those requested. Statewide, an average of 2,064 processes were issued for every authorized magistrate position in 1991, a slight decrease from 2,137 in 1990. See Table 36.

Magistrates reported over 1.1 million duty hours in 1991, providing services to the public during over 613 thousand of these hours. This was a decrease in the number of duty hours of 4.7 percent and a decrease of 2.7 percent in the total number of activity hours logged. Table 37.

The number of probable cause processes issued (arrest warrants, summonses, etc.) decreased from 516,052 in 1990 to 492,323 in 1991, about 4.6 percent. Processes were issued in 86.5 percent of the probable cause hearing transactions. The number of bonds issued decreased from 300,980 in 1990 to 280,907 in 1991. For every 100 bond requests, 59.2 were actually issued. Table 39.

Again in 1991, the Nineteenth District reported the greatest number of transactions (111,826) as well as the highest number of processes issued (79,321). The Twenty-second District reported the most civil warrants issued (8,912). The Ninth, Tenth, and Twenty-second districts were by far the largest issuers of civil warrants and together accounted for 79 percent of all civil warrants issued by magistrates in the state. Section A — Part Three

OTHER ACTIVITIES

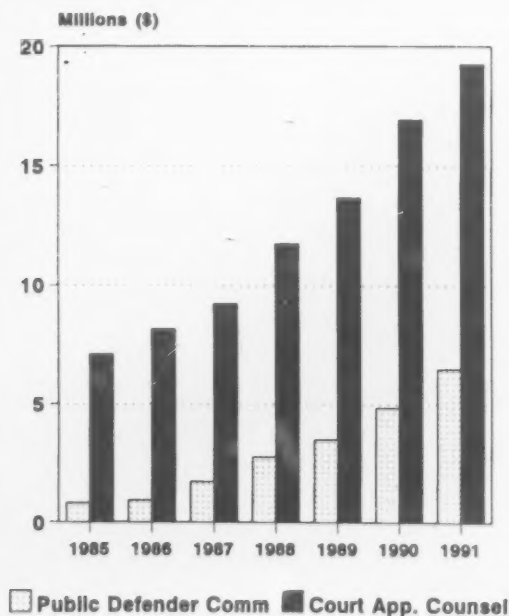

Other Activities, Part Three of the Judiciary's Year In Review, presents a summary of activities in the areas of indigent defense and involuntary mental commitments, medical malpractice review panels, and the work required to insure that judges are available throughout the Commonwealth to handle cases coming before the courts.

- INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES AND CRIMINAL FUND ACTIVITY
- INVOLUNTARY MENTAL COMMITMENTS
- MEDICAL MALPRACTICE REVIEW PANELS
- SUPREME COURT DESIGNATIONS
- CREATION OF NEW JUDGESHIPS
- UTILIZATION OF SUBSTITUTE AND RETIRED AND RECALLED JUDGES

INDIGENT DEFENSE SERVICES AND CRIMINAL FUND ACTIVITY

The Commonwealth paid over $25.7 million for the representation of indigent defendants during fiscal year 1991. These expenditures included reimbursement made to court-appointed attorneys from the Criminal Fund (CF) administered by the Office of the Executive Secretary and to public defender office personnel from funds administered by the Public Defender Commission. See Table 40. The Criminal Fund covers court costs and expenses as provided by law including fees and allowances for court assigned counsel. Total criminal fund expenditures increased from $24.4 million in fiscal year 1990 to $28.2 million in fiscal year 1991, an increase of 15.4 percent. Payments to court-appointed attorneys increased from $16.9 million to $19.2 million, a rise of 13.8 percent. Court-appointed attorney costs constituted approximately 68 percent of total criminal fund expenditures in FY 1991. Public Defender expenditures rose from $4.8 million to $6.5 million, an increase of 18.2 percent. See Table 41 and Display 42.

INDIGENT DEFENSE COSTS
Fiscal Years 1985 -1991

The number of defendants receiving services paid for from the Criminal Fund continued to grow in FY 1991. There was a 13.5 percent rise in defendants receiving legal representation services for a total of 121,485. Paralleling the increases in defendants, the number of charges represented by court-appointed attorneys increased 12.8 percent in FY 1991 to reach 163,998. The average fee paid to attorneys for representing indigent defendants rose from $116 per charge in FY 1990 to $120 in FY 1991. The Commonwealth recouped $1.63 million in FY 1991 from indigents convicted of crimes, about 8 percent of the amount spent on court-appointed counsel fees.

The number of defendants receiving court reporter services grew by 13.9 percent and totaled 63,473. Significant increases were also reported in the number of interpreter services provided in FY 1991 with the greatest increase occurring in services for non-English speaking defendants in criminal cases, which increased 37.3 percent to 3,654. Since fiscal year 1985, there has been an increase of 1,067 percent in the number of non-English speaking individuals receiving interpreter services in criminal cases. The cost of providing these services has increased 1,667 percent since FY 1985. By way of comparison, during the same time frame, the total number of defendants receiving court assigned counsel services increased 88 percent and costs associated with these services rose 172 percent. A total of 4,224 interpreter services were provided. The number of blood withdrawal and testing services provided also increased in FY 1991. Blood withdrawals for the purpose of analysis for alcohol increased 12.8 percent to 22,478. Table 41.

The operating costs of the public defender system increased by 33.4 percent during the fiscal year to reach $6.5 million. The 1991 General Assembly authorized the creation of one additional public defender office to serve the city of Lynchburg effective July 1, 1991. Effective July 1, 1992, the Fredericksburg Public Defender will also serve King George County and an additional office will open in Martinsville to serve that city and Henry County. This will bring the total number of public defender offices to 19 serving 44 localities across the state. See Display 45.

INVOLUNTARY MENTAL COMMITMENTS

The Commonwealth spent nearly $8 million for involuntary mental commitment proceedings in FY 1991, an increase of over 27 percent from the amount spent in FY 1990. Reimbursements to special justices rose 6.8 percent while the cost of providing attorneys increased 5.2 percent. Fees paid to physicians and psychiatrists during both hearings and detentions increased over 36 percent to $1.5 million. Involuntary mental commitment expenditures have more than doubled since 1985.

The number of hospital care services to patients involved in the commitment process rose to 7,086 in FY 1990, an increase of 22.2 percent over FY 1990. There were 34,258 patients who received services by medical personnel and 30,422 patients served by attorneys during the year. Services provided by special justices rose 7.3 percent and totaled 29,465. Table 44.

The number of preliminary hearings increased by 11.2 percent in FY 1991 and totaled 36,990. Commitment hearings grew by 1.3 percent to reach 37,254 and the number of recommitment hearings (6,864) increased by less than one percent from FY 1990 levels.

IMC costs in the general district courts rose 27.1 percent in FY 1991 and represented 87 percent of all involuntary mental commitment expenditures, the same as in FY 1990. In the juvenile and domestic relations district courts, the cost of involuntary mental commitment proceedings declined by less than one percent in FY 1991 while in combined courts the amount expended for such proceedings increased by almost 41 percent. Table 46.

The cost of detention (hospital costs, fees for physicians and psychiatrists) accounted for 72 percent of all IMC costs in FY 1991. Such costs represented 67 percent of all IMC costs in FY 1990. Detention costs increased from $4.2 million in FY 1990 to $5.8 million in FY 1991.

Preliminary hearing costs, which represented about 12 percent of all IMC expenditures in FY 1991, increased 10.4 percent while the costs of commitment hearings (also 12 percent of total expenditures) rose by only 1.2 percent. Recommitment hearings accounted for 2 percent of all involuntary mental commitment expenditures and increased by 1.6 percent in FY 1991.

MEDICAL MALPRACTICE REVIEW PANELS

A system of Medical Malpractice Review Panels was instituted in late 1976. The Panel may be viewed as a blue ribbon jury or a fact-finding body of five individuals whose decision is advisory and not binding. The composition of the panel is one judge, two attorneys, and two health care providers. During 1991, 267 panels were assigned, an increase of 5 (2 percent) over the previous year. Since the inception of the Medical Review System, an average of 154 panels per year has been processed.

From the first panel assignment on December 6, 1976 through December 31, 1991, 2,314 panels have been requested through the Supreme Court. Of this total, 960 have been concluded, 177 dismissed, 910 withdrawn and 267 remain in a pending or to-be-heard status as of the end of 1991.

The 1977 General Assembly amended the original legislation setting up the Medical Malpractice Review Panel System and provided the following opinions which a panel might determine pursuant to Section 8.01-581.7 of the Code of Virginia.

1. Evidence does not support a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care;
2. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is a proximate cause in the alleged damages;

3. Evidence supports a conclusion that the health care provider failed to comply with the appropriate standard of care and that such failure is not a proximate cause in the alleged damages; or
4. Evidence indicates that there is a material issue of fact, not requiring an expert opinion, bearing on liability for consideration by a court or jury (i.e., the case contains a material issue of fact that a court or jury can resolve without an expert opinion).

Of the 1,127 decisions* which had been rendered as of December 31, 1991, 856 (76 percent) favored the health care provider, 157 (14 percent) favored the claimant, and the remaining 114 (10 percent) fell within the last two opinion categories of Section 8.01-581.7.

During 1991, Northern Virginia continued to lead as the section of the state where the greatest number of medical malpractice claims were filed. Northern Virginia was once again followed by the Tidewater area. As illustrated on the following page, Hospitals, OB-GYN Physicians, General Surgeons and Internists are the groups accounting for the largest number of panel requests.

*Total differs from Panels Concluded due to the fact that more than one opinion may be rendered in a case.

SUPREME COURT DESIGNATIONS

In 1991, the Assistant Executive Secretary's office achieved a record number of designations issued through the Supreme Court of Virginia. A total of 958 designations were issued, 121 or 14 percent more than the 837 processed in 1990. See Table 49.

Of the 958 designations issued in 1991, 883 or 92 percent were for circuit court cases, and 75 (8 percent) were for district court assignments, almost the identical percentages as in 1990. The 883 circuit court designations represented a 13 percent increase over the number issued in 1990. This increase was primarily reflected in the number of requests for assistance which totaled 584, or 9 percent more than the previous year. The number of disqualification requests also increased a significant 30 percent (265 versus 203) in 1991. In the three-judge court cases, there was a significant decrease in Compensation Board appeals and a slight decrease in vote recount panels during 1991. Multi-Jurisdiction Grand Jury requests were the same (9) in 1990 and 1991.

In 1991, the largest designation categories for both the circuit and district levels continue to be those of general assistance and disqualification. Of the total 883 judicial designations issued to circuit court judges, 584 (66 percent) were for general assistance, and 265 (30 percent) were for disqualifications. Both active and retired circuit judges continued to accept designation appointments last year throughout the state's 31 judicial circuits. Cooperation at all levels remains essential as a significant increase in designation requests is noted during the last decade. There has been almost a 300 percent increase in designations in the last decade (335 in 1980 versus 958 last year).

For the last seven years, the district courts have used lists prepared by the Assistant Executive Secretary's office to call retired and substitute judges for service. From all reports, this decentralized system continues to function well. However, there are still some occasions when the Supreme Court must make district court assignments. In 1991, 57 requests for assistance were made compared with 43 requests in 1990, a 33 percent increase. The number of disqualification cases in the district courts increased from 13 to 18, a 39 percent increase.

The use of designated judges remains a key component in the judicial department's ongoing battle to handle increasing caseloads. Retired, recalled judges at both the circuit and district court levels positively impact the system and help avoid adding additional judges for which there is no current funding.

CREATION OF NEW JUDGESHIPS

In 1991, the General Assembly authorized funding for two new circuit court judgeships. These additional judgeships were in the Seventh Circuit (Newport News) and the Twenty-sixth Circuit and were effective July 1, 1991. In response to continuing increases in caseloads at the circuit and district court levels, the 1992 General Assembly authorized two additional circuit court judgeships, one in the Eleventh Circuit and one in the Nineteenth Circuit, while an additional judgeship also was approved for the Twenty-first Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court. These three new judgeships are effective July 1, 1992 and will increase the number of circuit judgeships to 135 and the number of J&DR district judgeships to 79.

UTILIZATION OF SUBSTITUTE AND RETIRED RECALLED JUDGES

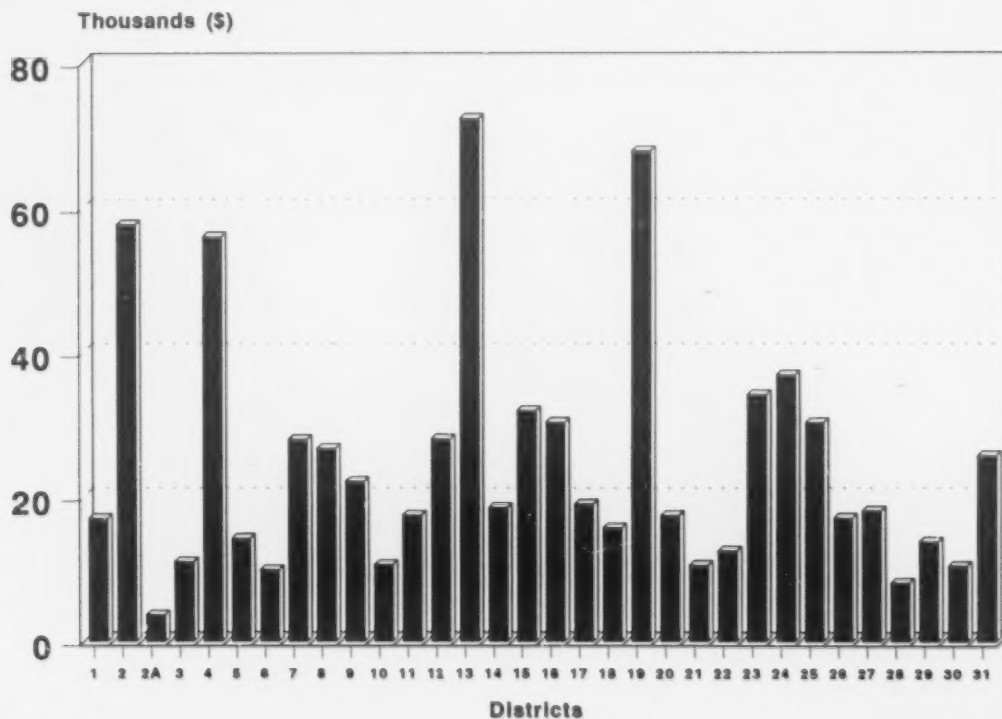

In 1991, the district courts continued to call upon substitute judges and to recall retired judges to assist the district court judges in the processing of cases.—

In 1991, the total cost of the utilization of substitute and retired recalled judges reached $791,682 for a total of 5,703 days (22.8 full-time equivalency positions), or 1.6 percent fewer days than in 1990. The average number of days per judge in which a substitute or retired recalled judge was needed totaled 29.7, compared to 30.2 days in 1990. See Tables 50 and 51.

The number of days in which a retired judge was called upon to serve (2,805) increased between 1990 and 1991 by nearly 8 percent, while the number of substitute judge days (2,898) decreased nearly 22 percent.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The 5,579 cases commenced in 1991 in the First Circuit represented a 21.7 percent increase over 1990. Most of the growth came in criminal cases, which totaled 3017, for an increase of 37.5 percent. The 2,562 new civil cases represented only a 7.2 percent increase. The caseload distribution in the First was 21.3 percent law, 24.6 percent equity, 35.4 percent felony, and 18.6 percent misdemeanor. This distribution was close to the average for the state for all case types.

The average caseload per judge in the First was 1,860 cases. The statewide average was 1,631 cases per judge and the urban average was 1,642. The circuit's civil caseload per judge ranked tenth across the state, at 854 as compared to the statewide average of 838 cases per judge. The urban average stood at 883 cases per judge. The average criminal caseload per judge was 1,006 cases, and ranked fifth in the state, significantly above the state average of 793 and the urban average of 759.

There was a 8.6 percent increase in the number of pending cases during 1991, the second highest number of pending cases in the state. Concluded cases increased by 35.2 percent. Of the 5,065 cases concluded, 2,524 were civil cases and 2,541 were criminal cases. Among civil cases, 8.7 percent were terminated in judge trials, and 1.7 percent were concluded in jury trials. Significantly, over 32 percent of criminal cases were concluded by judge trials, compared to a statewide average of 28.8 percent. About 2 percent of the circuit's criminal cases were terminated by jury trials. This compares to the statewide average of 3.9 percent. Seven more juries were impaneled in 1991 than in 1990, a 7.0 percent increase from 100 to 107 juries impaneled.

General District Court

During 1991, new cases filed in General District Court rose 5.3 percent to 91,269. Criminal cases, comprising 14.9 percent of the total caseload, rose 16.0 percent, to 13,588 cases. Traffic cases, which declined 5.9 percent, accounted for 47.5 percent of the caseload. Thirty-eight percent or 34,323 were civil cases, which rose 19.0 percent.

The average caseload per judge stood at 30,423 cases, above the state average of 28,245. The First ranked seventh in the state in average civil caseloads per judge. At 11,441 cases, this number was significantly higher than the state average of 9,742. The average criminal caseload ranked fourteenth among the districts, at 4,529 cases per judge. Traffic caseloads in the General District Court totaled 14,453 cases per judge, fourteenth highest in the state. It surpassed the state average of 14,360 cases per judge but not the urban average of 15,019 cases per judge. The number of hearings held in 1991 (88,626) represented a 4.4 percent increase over 1990.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

New cases in the First Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court experienced a 3.7 percent rise, to 9,575 cases. Juvenile cases, which rose 2.7 percent to 5,484 cases, comprised 57.3 percent of the total caseload. Domestic relations cases totaled 4,091 for a 5.0 percent increase.

The average caseload per judge for the court in 1991 was 4,778. This average was above both the state average of 4,394, and the average caseload among urban districts of 4,628. At 2,742 cases per judge, the average juvenile caseload ranked twelfth in the state and fell between the state and urban average of 2,611 cases per judge and 2,843 cases per judge, respectively. The average domestic relations caseload ranked eleventh in the state, at 2,046 cases per

Magistrate System

The 9 magistrates in the First District recorded 15,545 activity hours, 28,739 transactions, and 19,995 processes issued. Transactions declined by 10.1 percent. The First recorded an 85.2 percent issuance rate among probable cause hearings and a 53.6 percent issuance rate among bond hearings. Statewide, the issuance rate at probable cause hearings was 86.5 percent, and among bond hearings, 59.2 percent. There were 11,646 processes issued for probable cause, 7,209 issued for bonds, 5 issued for civil warrants and 1,135 for other causes.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In the Circuit Court, the number of commenced cases rose 5.3 percent in 1991 to 14,613. The increase was due to a 7.2 percent increase in criminal cases and a 3.9 percent increase in civil cases. Distribution of caseload was as follows: law, 26 percent; equity, 32.0 percent; felony, 25.7 percent; and misdemeanor, 16.2 percent. There was a 7.0 percent increase in the number of concluded cases (13,924 cases), and a 4.6 percent increase in the number of pending cases (15,648 cases).

The circuit's 1991 average caseload per judge was 1,461 cases. This was twenty-third in the state, and was below the statewide average caseload of 1,631 cases per judge. The average criminal caseload (613 cases per judge) ranked twenty-seventh in the state, and the average civil caseload (848 cases per judge) ranked twelfth. Statewide, the average criminal caseloads were 793 criminal cases per judge and 838 civil cases per judge. Among urban circuits, the average caseloads were 759 criminal and 883 civil cases per judge. In criminal cases, 79.9 percent were concluded within 150 days of filing. For civil cases, 64.4 percent were concluded within one year. Nearly 19 percent of the 5,900 concluded criminal cases were terminated in judge trials; 2.2 percent ended in jury trials. Statewide, 3.9 percent of criminal cases ended in jury trials, while 28.8 percent ended in judge trials.

The caseload averages and rankings for the Second Circuit are affected by the inclusion of the counties of Accomack and Northampton with Virginia Beach. If these two rural counties are excluded from the calculations, the caseload averages and rankings for the circuit are closer to statewide averages. For example, the average number of cases commenced by each of the nine judges in the Virginia Beach Circuit Court in 1991 was 1,506 compared to the state average of 1,631 and would rank twenty-first among the 31 circuits.

General District Court

In the General District Court in 1991 civil cases increased 16.5 percent to 76,501 cases while traffic cases fell 17.3 percent to 88,564. The number of criminal cases decreased by 24.0 percent to 27,947 cases. Civil cases comprised 16.5 percent of the total caseload with traffic cases representing 45.9 percent and criminal cases 14.5 percent. The resulting total general district caseload of 193,012 cases in 1991 represented an 7.9 percent decrease from 1990.

The average caseload of 32,169 cases per judge ranked seventh in the state, nearly 4,000 cases above the state average caseload of 28,245 cases per judge. The average traffic caseload ranked twelfth at 14,761 cases per judge, compared to a statewide average traffic caseload of 14,360 cases per judge, and an urban average caseload of 15,019 cases per judge. The average civil caseload was fifth statewide, at 12,750 cases per judge, compared to the urban average of 12,132. The average criminal caseload in the Second, however, was the seventh highest in the state. At 4,658 cases per judge, it was approximately 500 cases higher than the state average (4,143 cases), and the urban average (4,222 cases). The number of hearings in the Second declined 9.6 percent, to 195,203.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

In the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court, 24,129 new cases were filed: 14,943 juvenile cases and 9,186 domestic relations cases. These numbers represented a 1.9 percent rise in total caseload, a 1.4 percent decline among juvenile cases, and an 7.8 percent increase among domestic relations cases. The total average caseload ranked tenth in the state, at 4,826 cases per judge. The statewide average was 4,394 cases per judge. Among urban districts, it was 4,628 cases per judge. The average juvenile caseload ranked seventh in the state, and, at 2,989 cases per judge, also surpassed the state and urban average juvenile caseloads, at 2,611 cases per judge and 2,843 cases per judge, respectively. The average domestic relations caseload of 1,837 cases per judge ranked seventeenth in the state. Statewide, the domestic relations caseload was 1,783 cases per judge and among urban districts, it was 1,765 cases per judge.

Magistrate System

Magistrate transactions fell 19.0 percent from 1990 to 63,106. Processes declined 18.4 percent to 48,934. Full time equivalent hours totaled 34,983. There was a 93.8 percent issuance rate for probable cause hearings resulting in 25,304 processes being issued. Bond hearings resulted in 13,086 processes being issued for a 51.5 percent issuance rate.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

There were 6,228 cases commenced in the Third Circuit in 1991, an increase of 8.1 percent over 1990. There were 5,244 cases concluded, a 0.5 percent decrease from 1990, and pending cases totaled 10,164, an increase of 10.7 percent. The caseload distribution in the Third was: 25 percent law, 15 percent equity, 36-percent felony, and 25 percent misdemeanor. Statewide, the distribution was: 26 percent law, 25 percent equity, 33 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

The average caseload per judge ranked nineteenth of 31 circuits in the state, at 1,557 cases per judge. Statewide, it was 1,631 cases per judge. Among urban circuits, it was 1,642 cases per judge. The average civil caseload ranked thirtieth statewide, at 615 cases per judge, while among urban circuits, it was 883 cases per judge. The average criminal caseload ranked ninth statewide and, at 942 cases per judge, was above the state average of 793 cases per judge, and the urban average of 759 cases per judge.

Approximately 4 percent of the concluded civil cases were ended by judge trial, while one percent were ended by jury trial. Statewide, 13.6 percent of civil cases were concluded in judge trials, 1.5 percent in jury trials. Of the 3,396 concluded criminal cases, nearly 52 percent were terminated by judge trial, 2.1 percent by a jury trial. Statewide, the figures were 29 and 4 percent, respectively. A total of 50 percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year. Statewide, 65.5 percent of civil cases were concluded within this time period. Over 67 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 5 months, compared to a state figure of just over of 79 percent. Juries were impaneled in 101 cases, a 12.2 percent decrease from 1990.

Review of 1991 Caseload ActivityCircuit Court

Due to a rise of almost 26 percent in new criminal cases, the total new caseload in the Sixth increased by over 11 percent. Civil cases fell by 0.7 percent to 1,273. Caseload distribution was law, 21 percent (567 cases); equity, 27 percent (706 cases); felony 42 percent (1,124 cases); and misdemeanor, 10 percent (253 cases). The average number of commenced cases per judge was 1,325 compared with a statewide average per judge of 1,631 and a rural average per judge of 1,615.

In civil cases, 21.3 percent were judge trials while 2 percent were jury trials. Almost half of all criminal cases (46.8 percent) were adjudicated by judge trials and 3 percent by jury trials. Jury trials in criminal cases totaled 40 in 1991, a decrease over the previous year of 2.9 percent.

Concluded cases rose by 8.2 percent from 1990, while pending cases rose by 8.2 percent as well. Approximately 80 percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year of filing, which is substantially higher than the state average of 66 percent. Twenty-three percent of criminal cases were concluded within 1 month of filing; another 55 percent were disposed within 5 months; and 8 percent were adjudicated 9 months or more from filing.

General District Court

The number of new cases in the Sixth General District Court decreased slightly in 1991 in all areas. There was a 0.4 percent decrease in total cases, which numbered 73,916, a 4.4 percent decline in criminal cases and a dip of 0.3 percent in traffic cases. The number of felony cases initiated in the district courts fell by 24 percent. The caseload distribution was 10 percent criminal, 76 percent traffic, and 14 percent civil. This compares with a state average of 15 percent criminal, 51 percent traffic, and 35 percent civil.

In the courts within the district, the average caseload per judge was 24,639. This was below the statewide average of 28,245 but slightly above the rural average of 24,496. Average caseload per judge in criminal cases was 2,456 compared with the statewide average of 4,143. Civil caseloads per judge averaged 3,372 while the statewide average was 9,742. The average caseload per judge for traffic cases, at 18,811, was significantly higher than the statewide and rural averages of 14,360 and 13,570, respectively. Hearings decreased by 1.5 percent over 1990.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The total number of new cases in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court rose by 9 percent in 1991, with juvenile cases rising 9.7 percent and domestic relations cases rising 7.8 percent. This resulted in a caseload per judge average of 3,346, ranking twenty-eighth among the 32 districts and well below the statewide average of 4,394 and the rural average of 4,156.

Juvenile cases showed a 10 percent increase in 1991 while status cases declined 8.9 percent and traffic cases dipped 13.5 percent. Hearings increased by nearly five percent in 1991 and totaled 14,605. This resulted in an average of 7,303 hearings per judge, twenty-seventh among the 32 districts and well below state and rural averages.

Average caseload per judge for juvenile cases ranked twenty-seventh in the state and average caseload per judge for domestic relations cases ranked twenty-fifth. Juvenile cases made up 56 percent of the caseload,

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

Commenced cases in the Seventh Circuit totaled 6,429 in 1991, rising almost nine percent over the number filed in 1990. This was done primarily to a growth in criminal cases of 17.4 percent. Caseload distribution was law, 1,470 (23 percent); equity, 1,562 (24 percent); felony, 2,298 (36 percent); and misdemeanor, 1,099 (17 percent).

Concluded cases increased by 25.8 percent over 1990, while pending cases rose by 1.1 percent. Over 66 percent of concluded civil cases were completed within 12 months. More than 79 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 5 months of filing.

Judge trials accounted for 7.6 percent of civil cases with 1.6 percent of civil cases requiring juries. Over 42 percent of criminal cases resulted in judge trials while less than one percent resulted in jury trials. There was a total of 69 jury trials in 1991, a 26 percent increase over the previous year.

Average caseload per judge was 1,607, seventeenth among the 31 circuits, compared with a statewide average of 1,631 and an urban average of 1,642. The circuit's average number of civil cases per judge (758) was below the statewide and urban averages of 838 and 883, respectively. The average caseload per judge for criminal cases was 849, fourteenth highest in the state.

General District Court

New cases in the Seventh District Court rose by 2.1 percent over 1990 and totaled 96,026. This resulted in an average caseload per judge of 32,009 compared with the state average of 28,245. Criminal cases increased 6.2 percent. Traffic cases fell 6.0 percent. Civil cases rose 6.5 percent. There were slight increases in most other areas but a significant 35.4 percent decrease in capias/show cause matters in traffic cases. Even with the decrease, the court ranked second in the state for this type of hearing, with an average of 665 cases per judge.

Overall, the Seventh ranked eighth in the state in average caseload per judge. The court's civil and criminal caseloads were among the ten highest in the Commonwealth. Criminal cases comprised 18 percent of the caseload, traffic cases comprised 32 percent of the caseload, and civil cases comprised 51 percent of the caseload. This compares with a state percentage distribution of 15 percent criminal, 51 percent traffic, and 35 percent civil.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The number of new cases in the Seventh Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court increased significantly in almost all categories in 1991. New cases, which totaled 10,843, rose by 7.9 percent, with juvenile cases increasing by over 14 percent and domestic relations cases increasing by 2.0 percent. Hearings increased by 8.3 percent over 1990. The average caseload per judge ranked twenty-fourth in the state with the juvenile caseload per judge ranking twenty-ninth among the districts. The composition of the court's total caseload was 50 percent domestic relations cases and 51

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

Commenced cases in the Eighth Circuit Court totaled 4,714 in 1991, an increase of 6.9 percent from 1990. The rise in caseload was due primarily to a 15.6 percent jump in criminal cases to 2,481. Civil cases declined by 1.4 percent to total 2,233. Concluded cases rose by 28.8 percent and pending cases declined by 9.6 percent. The number of juries impaneled declined by 3 in 1990 to total 56.

Judge trials occurred in 11.5 percent of civil cases for a total of 287. There were 29 jury trials in civil matters, 1.2 percent of the total civil cases. In criminal cases, there were 630 judge trials, approximately one quarter of all cases. Jury trials comprised 1.8 percent of all criminal cases. Caseload distribution was as follows: law, 24 percent; equity, 24 percent; felony, 27 percent; and misdemeanor, 25 percent.

Approximately 41 percent of civil cases filed were concluded within 1 year of filing. This is well below the state average was 66 percent within a year. Over 85 percent of concluded criminal cases were concluded within 5 months of filing, with 37.2 percent concluded within 1 month of filing. Eleven percent took longer than 270 days from filing to conclusion.

General District Court

There was a slight decrease of 1.1 percent in total cases (87,716). Civil cases, which totaled 33,887, rose by 1.8 percent, while the 110,062 hearings represented 2.0 percent fewer than in 1990. Sixteen percent of cases were criminal cases, 46 percent were traffic cases, and 39 percent were civil cases.

Average caseload per judge was 29,239, compared with a statewide average of 28,295 and an urban average of 31,374. The 1991 average caseload per judge for criminal cases was tenth in the state at 4,642; traffic caseload was nineteenth in the state at 13,301; and civil caseload was tenth in the state at 11,296. Average caseload per judge for hearings, at 36,687, was second highest among the 32 districts.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

In the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court, total caseload in 1991 rose 7.0 percent to 9,294 cases. Juvenile cases rose 4.6 percent to 5,352 due primarily to an increase in custody/visitation matters of 25.6 percent or 553 cases. Domestic relations cases increased by 10.5 percent, from 3,568 in 1990 to 3,942 in 1991. Felonies showed the greatest percentage increase (32.4 percent) while civil support cases, although increasing only 6.4 percent, totaled 155 more cases in 1991 than in 1990 and constituted the greatest actual increase in terms of the number of cases. Juvenile cases represented 58 percent of the court's caseload.

Average caseload per judge totaled 4,647 compared with a statewide average of 4,394 and an urban average of 4,628. Average juvenile caseload per judge (2,676) approximated the state average of 2,611 and ranked fourteenth among the 32 districts. The average number of domestic relations cases per judge in the Eighth (1,971) was above the statewide average (1,783) and the urban average (1,785). There was a 11.6 percent increase in hearings, resulting in a ranking of second among the districts in average hearings per judge.

Magistrate System

The 6 magistrates in the Eighth logged 10,510 hours recording 30,398 transactions and issuing 24,933 processes. Probable cause hearings had an issuance rate of 94.2

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In 1991, commenced cases rose by 8.4 percent in the Ninth Circuit Court to total 6,130. Civil cases totaled 3,026, a 9.8 percent increase, and criminal cases totaled 3,104, up 7.1 percent over 1990. Significant increases were also seen in the number of concluded cases, which rose by 16.3 percent to total 5,999 cases. The number of juries impaneled (78) declined by 2.5 percent or only 2 juries. The distribution of caseload was law, 21 percent; equity, 29 percent; felony, 27 percent; and misdemeanor, 24 percent.

The caseload average per judge for all cases was 2,043 compared to a statewide average per judge of 1,631 and a rural average of 1,615. This was second among the 31 circuits. The caseload average per judge for civil cases was 1,009, compared to a statewide average of 838, and the average for criminal cases was 1,035, compared to a statewide figure of 793.

Judge trials were required in 8.3 percent of civil cases, with jury trials being held in only 1.2 percent. There were 1,092 judge trials in criminal cases, 32.3 percent of the total. Jury trials were held in 70 or 2.1 percent of the criminal cases.

A total of 71.1 percent of the circuit's civil cases were concluded within one year of filing. This is higher than the state average of 66 percent. Nearly 73 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 5 months with 16.7 percent of these being concluded within 1 month. Almost 10 percent of concluded criminal cases took 9 months or longer from filing to conclusion.

General District Court

New cases in the Ninth General District Court rose by 0.8 percent and totaled 72,474 cases. Criminal cases fell by 8.6 percent to 10,267 cases, and civil cases rose 13 percent to 16,550. However, traffic cases fell by 0.8 percent to 45,657 cases. Criminal capias/show cause cases fell by 21.9 percent and traffic capias/show cases decreased by 6.7 percent. Hearings decreased by 0.4 percent over 1990 to 70,078. Caseload composition in the Ninth was 14 percent criminal cases, 63 percent traffic, and 23 percent were civil cases. This compares to a statewide percentage distribution of 12 percent criminal cases, 51 percent traffic, and 35 percent civil cases.

The 1991 average caseload per judge was below the statewide average for civil and criminal cases. The Ninth ranked twenty-fourth in total average caseload per judge (24,158), twenty-fifth in criminal caseload per judge (3,422), twenty-seventh in civil caseload per judge (5,517), and twenty-third in hearings per judge (23,359). The average caseload per judge for traffic cases (15,219) was eleventh in the state, above the state average of 14,360 and the rural average of 13,570 cases.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

There were increases over 1990 in the number of cases in all categories except juvenile traffic and domestic relations felonies. Fifty-seven percent of cases were juvenile, almost identical to the state average of 59 percent. New cases totaled 8,766 with 5,035 juvenile cases and 3,731 domestic relations cases.

In average caseload per judge, the Ninth

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

Commenced cases in the Tenth Circuit Court grew 14.8 percent in 1991 to 3,997, 515 more than in 1990. Civil cases rose by 6.3 percent to total 1,799 while criminal cases, at 2,198, rose dramatically by 2.8 percent. Concluded cases and pending cases rose by 13.2 and 11.2 percent, respectively. The case distribution was as follows: law, 883 (22 percent); equity, 916 (23 percent); felony, 1,627 (41 percent); and misdemeanor, 571 (14 percent).

The number of juries impaneled increased by nearly 60 percent from 1990 figures. There were 12 civil jury trials, .7 percent of total civil cases; and 53 criminal jury trials, 2.4 percent of total criminal cases. Judge trials occurred in 7.5 percent of civil cases and in 21 percent of criminal cases. Seventy-four percent of concluded civil cases were concluded within 1 year. Nearly 81 percent of concluded criminal cases were concluded within 5 months of filing; of these cases, 17.4 percent were concluded within 1 month of filing.

The average caseload per judge was 1,999, fifth in the state, compared with a statewide average of 1,631 and a rural average of 1,615. The average civil caseload was 900, compared with the statewide average of 838; the average criminal caseload was 1,099, compared with the statewide average of 838.

General District Court

The 71,979 total new cases in the Tenth in 1991 was a 5.4 percent increase over 1990. While criminal cases rose by only 1.8 percent to 9,553, traffic case totals of 36,672 decreased by 4.8 percent. This decrease was due to reductions in all categories of traffic cases, ranging from a 2.5 percent decline in infractions to a 25.3 percent decline in felonies. Civil cases increased by 26.4 percent to 25,754, and hearings increased by 2.6 percent to 59,702. Caseload distribution was criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 48 percent; and civil, 38 percent. This approximated the state averages of criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent; and civil, 35 percent.

During 1991, both total and criminal average caseload per judge ranked among the lowest eight districts. While the overall average caseload per judge (23,993) ranked twenty-fifth among the 32 districts, for criminal cases, the Tenth average criminal caseload (3,184) ranked twenty-eighth. The average number of hearings per judge (19,901) was twenty-ninth in the state. Average caseloads per judge for traffic cases (12,224) and civil cases (8,585) were ranked higher at twentieth and sixteenth, respectively.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court experienced a 5.4 percent decrease in total cases which numbered 8,621. Juvenile cases (4,481) decreased by 5.0 percent, while domestic relations cases (4,140) decreased by only 5.9 percent in spite of a 33.7 percent increase in domestic relations felony cases. Domestic relations cases made up 48 percent of the docket, compared with a state average of 41 percent and a rural average of 43 percent. Hearings decreased to 15,808, 3.4 percent lower than in 1990.

In the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court, the domestic relations average caseload per judge was tenth highest in the state at 2,070. This compares with a

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In 1991, the total number of commenced cases in the Eleventh Circuit increased by 168 cases or 5.2 percent and totaled 3,423 cases. This resulted from the 6.4 percent growth in civil cases to 1,491 and an increase of 4.2 percent in the number of criminal cases to 1,932.

The Eleventh Circuit Court ranked thirtieth in the state in number of commenced civil cases for a total of 1,491 cases in 1991. It ranked twenty-first in the state in average number of cases per judge for civil cases (746). The 1,932 criminal cases commenced in 1991 gave the Eleventh an overall ranking of twenty-fifth in the state. However, the average number of criminal cases per judge was seventh in the state for an average of 966. Total average cases per judge (1,712) was eleventh among the 31 circuits. Pending cases rose by 6.7 percent over 1990, with concluded case numbers increasing by approximately 13 percent. The number of juries impaneled fell by 7.2 percent.

Felony cases made up 47 percent of the caseload distribution compared with a statewide average of 33 percent. Further distribution was misdemeanor, 14 percent; law, 22 percent; and equity, 22 percent. Among concluded civil cases, 6.0 percent (89 cases) resulted in judge trials, and 1.1 percent (16 cases) ended by jury trials. Criminal case judge trials made up 34.3 percent of the concluded cases for a total of 614 cases. Jury trials numbered 85, or 4.7 percent of concluded cases.

Approximately 68 percent of concluded civil cases were completed within 12 months of filing. More than 14 percent were at least 5 years old at the time of conclusion. Among criminal cases, 70.1 percent were concluded within 5 months; and 8.8 percent were 9 months old or older at time of conclusion.

General District Court

The Eleventh General District Court experienced an increase of 1.9 percent in the number of new cases in 1991. New cases totaled 52,429, up from 51,450 in 1990. This increase was due largely to a rise in criminal cases of 6.4 percent. Civil cases fell 3.3 percent. Traffic infractions showed a 2.8 percent increase and capias/show cause cases showed a 23.8 percent increase, while traffic felonies increased by 20.0 percent. Traffic cases made up 52 percent of the caseload, near the state average of 51 percent. Criminal cases made up 22 percent of caseload, compared with a state average of 15 percent, while civil cases made up 26 percent of the caseload, compared with a state average of 35 percent.

The number of felonies increased in both criminal cases (8.1 percent) and traffic cases (20.0 percent). Criminal capias/show cause actions showed a slight increase of less than 5 percent, or 60 cases.

Although the Eleventh ranked nineteenth among the 32 districts in total average caseload per judge at 28,245, it was second in the state in average caseload per judge for criminal cases. The average criminal caseload was 5,695 compared with a statewide average of 4,143 and a rural average of 4,048. Yet for felony cases, the average of 1,381 cases per judge ranked first among the 32 districts. For traffic cases, the average caseload ranked seventeenth; for civil cases, the average caseload ranked twenty-first; and hearing caseload ranked twelfth.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The number of juvenile cases (6,639) increased by 2.1 percent, with delinquency cases showing a dramatic increase of 20.8 percent and status cases rising 109.2 percent from 76 to 159 cases. Domestic relations cases, which totaled 3,217, showed an approximately 7 percent increase while the average caseload per judge for these cases ranked twenty-second in the state at 1,609. Hearings increased 5.8 percent resulting in an average hearing caseload per judge of 6,668, twenty-ninth in the state. The total average caseload ranking was twenty-ninth among the 32 districts. The average juvenile caseload per judge was the lowest in the state at 1,711, compared with a statewide average of 2,611 and a rural average of 2,374. Juvenile cases made up only 52 percent of the total caseload compared with a state percentage distribution of 60 percent and a rural juvenile case distribution of 57 percent.

Magistrate System

The 14 magistrates in the Eleventh recorded 19,327 hours, with 29,277 transactions and 24,131 processes issued 82 for every 100 transactions. Numbers showed little change from 1990 with transactions rising only 0.4 percent, and processes rising by .1 percent. There were 12,023 processes issued in probable cause hearings, 85.5 percent of the transactions. Processes were issued in 79.8 percent of bond transactions.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

Commenced cases in the Twelfth Circuit Court increased by 4.2 percent during 1991 to 6,412, with civil cases increasing by 1.6 percent and criminal cases (2,687) increasing by 8.0 percent. With a total of 3,725 cases, the Twelfth ranked first in the state in number of civil cases. It ranked twelfth in the state in total number of criminal cases. Concluded and pending cases also showed increases of 13.4 percent and 2.6 percent, respectively. The number of juries impaneled went from 120 to 147, an increase of approximately 23 percent. The circuit had the fifth highest number of civil jury trials in the state. Caseload distribution was as follows: law, 25 percent; equity, 33 percent; felony, 30 percent; and misdemeanor, 12 percent.

Approximately 2 percent of concluded civil cases were judge trials, for a total of 62. The 32 civil jury trials made up .9 percent of concluded cases. Judge trials, at 427, comprised 15.1 percent of concluded criminal cases. There were 159 (5.8 percent) criminal jury trials. Approximately two-thirds of civil cases were concluded within 12 months of filing, while only 4.2 percent took 5 years or longer to conclude. In the criminal arena, 22.4 percent of cases were concluded within 30 days, 62.3 were concluded within 150 days and 4.8 percent took longer than 270 days to conclude.

The average caseload per judge was 2,137, compared with a statewide average of 1,631 and an urban average of 1,642. The average civil caseload was 1,242, compared with a statewide average of 838 and an urban average of 883. Average criminal caseload was twelfth in the state, with an average of 896. The Twelfth Circuit Court ranked second in the state in average caseload for concluded cases and third in the state for average caseload for pending cases.

General District Court

The Twelfth General District Court showed a decrease of less than one percent in criminal cases, a 19.5 percent increase in traffic cases, a 1.9 percent decrease in civil cases, and a 3.6 percent increase in hearings during 1991. Total new cases increased by 11.9 percent to 92,562. The percentage increase in traffic cases was due largely to a rise of 27.6 percent in infractions. Traffic felonies rose 3.4 percent, from 88 in 1990 to 97 in 1991. The average overall caseload per judge in 1991 was 30,854 compared to a statewide average of 28,245 and an urban average of 31,374. The Court ranked ninth in the state in the number of total new cases, nineteenth statewide, in average caseload per judge for criminal cases; third in average caseload per judge for traffic cases; twenty-fifth in average caseload per judge for civil cases; and fourth in average caseload for hearings. Caseload percentage distribution was criminal, 13 percent; traffic, 70 percent; and civil 18 percent. This compares to a state average percentage distribution of criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent; and civil, 35 percent.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

Total new cases in the Twelfth Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court rose substantially in 1991 to total 12,623. Juvenile cases (7,591) increased 6.7 percent; domestic relations cases (5,032) increased by 9.1 percent; and hearings (22,850) increased by 8.6 percent. The only decrease was in domestic relations misdemeanor cases, which went from 1,314 in 1990 to 1,160 in 1991, a decline of almost 12 percent. Other categories of domestic relations cases rose dramatically in 1991 with increases ranging from 60 percent in criminal support cases to 21.8 percent in capias/show cause cases. Felony cases, however, remained unchanged at 205 cases.

The average caseload per judge in Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court was well above the state average in all areas. Total average caseload was 6,312 compared to the state average of 4,394. Juvenile average caseload was 3,796, compared to the state average of 2,611; domestic relations average caseload was 2,516, compared to the state average of 1,783; and hearings averaged 11,425 per judge, compared to the state average of 8,856. Juvenile cases comprised 60 percent of the caseload distribution, compared to a statewide urban juvenile caseload distribution of 59 percent.

Magistrate System

The 11 magistrates in the Twelfth posted 18,720 hours, completed 49,411 transactions, and issued 38,829 processes. Both transactions and processes decreased slightly by 0.3 percent and 2.1 percent, respectively, while total workload ranked seventh in the state. Fifty-two percent of bond transactions resulted in processes being issued. In probable cause hearings, the process issuance rate was 87.3 percent.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The Thirteenth Circuit Court experienced a 9.1 percent increase in civil cases in 1991 while criminal cases rose by 6.6 percent. Overall commenced cases increased by 8.0

percent to total 14,709. The caseload percentage distribution was law, 44 percent; equity, 11 percent; felony 34 percent and misdemeanor, 10 percent. Law cases comprised a higher proportion of total caseload than at the state level where an average of 26 percent of the cases were law; equity cases in the circuit constituted less than half the state average of 25 percent.

Reflecting the increase in civil cases, the average civil caseload per judge (1,017) was third in the state compared with a statewide average of 838. In criminal cases, the circuit ranked sixteenth with 822 cases per judge. Concluded cases increased by 12.5 percent over the 1990 total to 14,418, while the number of pending cases increased by 2.5 percent.

The Thirteenth ranked first in the state in the average number of juries impaneled per judge. The actual number of juries rose from 453 in 1990 to 463 in 1991, an increase of 2.2 percent. Jury trials were held in 3.0 percent of civil cases and in 7.4 percent of criminal cases. Judge trials accounted for 19.3 percent of civil cases and 13.1 percent of criminal cases. Approximately 72 percent of concluded civil cases were concluded within 1 year. Fifty-one percent of criminal cases were concluded within 5 months of filing, with 41 percent of these concluded within 1 month of filing. Only 3 percent took 9 months or longer to be concluded.

General District Court

In the General District Court, the number of new cases increased 5.2 percent from 262,777 in 1990 to 276,313 in 1991. This resulted in an average caseload per judge of 34,539 which was third among the 32 districts. Criminal cases increased by 2.4 percent and civil cases grew by 12.1 percent. Traffic cases showed a 9.3 percent decline. The average civil caseload per judge (22,292 cases) ranked first in the state, more than double the state average of 9,742 and 10,160 more than the average for urban areas of 12,132. The average criminal caseload per judge ranked seventeenth in the state; average traffic caseload ranked thirty-first; and average hearing caseload ranked tenth.

Civil cases made up 65 percent of the total caseload, compared to a statewide average of 35 percent. Twelve percent of the caseload were criminal cases, and 23 percent of the caseload were traffic cases. Statewide average distribution was criminal, 15 percent; and traffic, 51 percent.

General District Court

The Fourteenth General District Court showed a 15.3 percent increase in total new cases. Most of this increase can be attributed to the 36.5 percent increase in civil cases which grew by over 13,500 cases from 37,128 in 1990 to 50,684 in 1991. Criminal cases increased by 7.5 percent; traffic cases increased by less than one percent. Among criminal cases, felonies increased by 19.9 percent and capias/show cause actions grew by nearly 72 percent to total 587. Among traffic cases, the number of felonies increased by 19.3 percent. The number of hearings increased by 10.3 percent and totaled 102,572.

The caseload percentage distribution in the district in 1991 was 10 percent criminal, 46 percent civil, and 44 percent traffic; compared with the state average percent distributions of 15 percent criminal, 35 percent civil, and 51 percent traffic.

The average number of new cases per judge in the Fourteenth was 36,404, highest among the 32 districts and 8,159 above the statewide average of 28,245 cases per judge. The district ranked third in the number of civil cases per judge with 16,895. The average criminal caseload per judge was twenty-fourth with 3,441, compared to the state average of 4,143 cases. In traffic cases per judge the district ranked tenth in the state.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

In 1991, the number of new cases in the J&DR District Court increased by 8.0 percent; juvenile cases increased by 7.2 percent and domestic relations cases increased by 9.1 percent. Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The number of commenced cases in the Seventeenth Circuit grew by only less than one percent in 1991 to reach 5,908 cases. An increase of 2.7 percent in civil cases was accompanied by a decrease of 2.5 percent in criminal cases. Total civil cases reached 3,257 while criminal cases totaled 2,651.

The 2,371 felony cases and 280 misdemeanor cases resulted in a caseload distribution with a lower percentage of felonies than was typical statewide. Caseload percentage distribution for the Seventeenth was law, 31 percent; equity, 24 percent; felony, 40 percent; and misdemeanor, 5 percent. State percentages were 26 percent, 25 percent, 33 percent, and 16 percent, respectively.

Concluded cases showed a 2.8 percent increase and totaled 5,560. There was a 6.2 percent increase in pending cases from 5,618 in 1990 to 5,966 in 1991. Fifty-six percent of civil cases were concluded within one year, but over 8 percent required five years or longer. Approximately 29 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 30 days, 45.3 percent were concluded within 5 months, and 11.0 percent took nine months or longer to conclude.

The number of juries impanelled fell by 2.0 percent, from 205 in 1990 to 201 in 1990. There were 49 civil jury trials (1.7 percent of concluded civil cases) and 212 criminal jury trials (20.9 percent of concluded criminal cases). Civil judge trials totaled 621 (22.1 percent), and criminal judge trials totaled 575 (20.9 percent).

Average caseload per judge in the Seventeenth Circuit Court during 1991 was 1,477, compared with a statewide average of 1,631. This caseload per judge figure ranked twenty-second among the 31 circuits. The average civil caseload was 814, compared to a statewide average of 838, and was fifteenth in the state. Judges in the circuit commenced 663 criminal cases each, twenty-fifth among all circuits, compared to the state.

General District Court

In the general district courts, 98,636 new cases were filed. This represents a 3.1 percent decrease from 1990. Among criminal cases, capias/show cause matters grew by 75.5 percent from 1,518 to 2,664. Traffic infractions declined by 11.6 percent and the number of traffic misdemeanors increased 33.5 percent from 6,016 to 8,033. Civil cases increased 10.0 percent. The number of hearings totaled 103,327, 5.7 percent fewer than in 1990. The caseload distribution was 11 percent criminal, 70 percent traffic, and 19 percent civil.

The average caseload per judge was 32,879, sixth in the State, more than 4,000 cases higher than the statewide average caseload (28,245 cases per judge), and approximately 1,500 higher than the urban average caseload (31,374 cases per judge). The average traffic caseload was second highest in the state, at 22,847. The average criminal caseload ranked twentieth, at 3,739 cases per judge. This was lower than state and urban criminal caseloads, at 4,143 and 4,222 cases per judge, respectively. The average civil caseload was 6,293 cases per judge, and ranked twenty-second in the State. Statewide, the average civil caseload was 9,742. Among urban districts, the average civil caseload was 12,132 cases per judge.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

In the J&DR district court in 1991, total cases (4,653) rose by 6.2 percent, juvenile cases (3,614) rose by 7.0 percent, and domestic relations cases (1,039) rose by 3.5 percent. Among juvenile cases, the number of delinquency matters increased from 1,096 to 1,355 or 23.6 percent. In domestic relations cases, a 13.8 percent decrease in the number of misdemeanors was accompanied by a 16.5 percent increase in the number of felonies. Hearings increased by 13.4 percent from 11,161 in 1990 to 12,651 in 1991. The Seventeenth had a considerably higher percentage of juvenile cases than the state average. Its juvenile caseload percentage was 78 percent compared to the state average of 59 percent.

The judges in the Seventeenth District averaged 2,327 juvenile and domestic relations cases each in 1991, the thirty-second caseload in the state. The average juvenile caseload of 1,807 was lower than the state average of 2,611. The domestic relations caseload ranked thirty-second among the 32 districts in the state. At 520 cases per judge, it was less than one-third the state average of 1,783 and the urban average of 1,785 cases per judge. New cases in the Seventeenth were split 78 and 22 percent between juvenile and domestic relations cases, respectively.

Magistrate System

The 7 magistrates in the Seventeenth posted 12,586 hours, with the 32,019 transactions and 23,084 processes issued. The 12,151 probable cause hearings resulted in processes being issued 93.0 percent of the time. The 8,691 processes issued for bond transactions resulted in a 52.1 percent issuance rate. The number of transactions represented a decline of 5.9 percent from 1990 levels, while the number of processes was 10.7 percent fewer than in the previous year.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

Total commenced cases in the Eighteenth Circuit Court increased by 7.4 percent in 1991 to 4,344. This compares with a 1990 total of 4,045. Civil cases (2,570) increased by 8.0 percent and criminal cases (1,774) by 6.5 percent. Concluded cases increased by 7.7 percent and pending cases showed a 14.3 percent decrease. There were 118 juries impanelled, compared with the 116 juries impaneled in 1990, a 1.7 percent decrease.

Total average caseload per judge was 1,448, compared with a statewide average of 1,631, and an urban average of 1,642 cases per judge. This was twenty-fourth among the 31 circuits. Average civil caseload (857 cases per judge) ranked ninth in the state and the average criminal caseload (591 cases per judge) ranked twenty-eighth. Substantial work has been accomplished by the circuit in reducing the number of pending or backlogged cases. At the end of 1991, only 585 cases remained pending. This was the lowest number of pending cases in any circuit in the Commonwealth. Twenty-nine percent of the caseload were law cases; 30 percent were equity cases; 26 percent were felony cases and 15 percent were misdemeanor cases.

Among civil cases, 10.3 percent were concluded by a judge trial and 1.6 percent were concluded by a jury trial. Approximately 71 percent of cases were concluded within 12 months of filing. Only 0.2 percent of cases took 5 years or longer to conclude. Among criminal cases, 64.6 percent were concluded within 5 months, with 33.2 percent concluded within 1 month. Nine months or longer were required to conclude 1.3 percent of cases. Nearly 15 percent of all criminal cases were concluded by a judge trial, with 5.3 percent being concluded by a jury trial.

General District Court

All types of cases showed an increase in number during 1991 in the General District Court. New cases (53,469) increased by 15.5 percent, while criminal cases (7,420) increased by 9 percent and traffic cases (27,901) increased by 25.2 percent. The number of civil cases increased 5.5 percent to 18,148. The most dramatic increases occurred in traffic felony cases, 94.1 percent; criminal capias/show cause cases, 20.2 percent; and traffic misdemeanor cases, 24.1 percent. Hearings, which totaled 55,851 in 1991 compared with 49,134 in 1990, increased by 13.7 percent. Caseload distribution was reasonably close to the state average. This percentage distribution was criminal, 14 percent; traffic, 52 percent; and civil, 34 percent; compared with the state percentage distribution of criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent, and civil, 35 percent.

In 1991, the average number of cases per judge in the Eighteenth General District Court ranked seventeenth among the 32 districts with 26,735 cases each. The average criminal caseload (3,710 cases per judge) ranked twenty-first, and average traffic caseload (13,951 cases per judge) ranked fifteenth statewide. The average caseload for civil cases, which totaled 9,074 compared with a statewide average of 9,742 and an urban average of 12,132, ranked fourteenth in the state.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

Cases in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court showed increases in case numbers in most categories during 1991. Overall, cases increased by 12.7 percent and totalled 4,803. Juvenile cases (2,407) increased by 13.1 percent and domestic relations cases (2,396) increased by 12.4 percent. The only areas to show decrease were juvenile status cases, which numbered only 9 and fell by 43.8 percent from 16 in 1990, and domestic relations misdemeanor cases, which decreased by 2.8 percent. Hearings increased by 12.0 percent and totaled 9,253.

The Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court ranked eleventh in the state in average caseload per judge, overall, and its domestic relations caseload (2,396 cases per judge) ranked sixth in the state. Among criminal support actions, which averaged 115 per judge compared with a state average of 14, the district ranked first among the 32 districts. The number of juvenile cases per judge (2,407) ranked eighteenth in the state, and juvenile status actions ranking thirty-first with 4 per judge. Caseload percentage distribution was evenly split between juvenile and domestic relations cases. The state average distribution was 59 percent juvenile and 41 percent domestic relations cases.

Magistrate System

The 6 magistrates in the Eighteenth logged 8,883 hours dealing with 25,944 transactions, an increase of 5.4 percent, while the number of processes increased 3.6 percent to 19,529. Probable cause hearings resulted in processes being issued 93.7 percent of the time. The process issuance rate for bonds was 52.1 percent.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

The circuit's overall new caseload (21,466 cases) grew by 6.2 percent over the 20,215 reported in the previous year.

Circuit Court

The number of commenced cases (21,466) in the Nineteenth Circuit increased by 6.2 percent in 1991, with civil cases (14,318) increasing by 5.5 percent and criminal cases (7,148) by 8 percent from 1990. The 19,466 concluded cases represented a 3.8 percent increase over the previous year. Pending cases totaled 21,383, an 10.3 percent increase over 1990. There were 562 juries impaneled, a 26.6 percent increase.

During the year the circuit reported 2,539 judge trials in civil cases. Juries were impanelled to hear 1.4 or 179 percent of civil cases disposed. Almost 44 percent of criminal cases were concluded by judge trials and there were 374 (5.7 percent) criminal jury trials. Approximately 63 percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year. In the criminal arena, almost 90 percent were concluded within 9 months of filing.

In 1991, the average number of cases per judge average in the Nineteenth was 1,651, compared with a statewide average of 1,631. The civil caseload of 1,101 cases per judge ranked second and the criminal caseload of 550 cases per judge ranked thirty-first among the 31 circuits. The 14,318 new civil cases filed in 1991 ranked first statewide. The circuit's 7,148 commenced criminal cases ranked second in the state.

General District Court

The total number of new cases in the General District Court rose by 4.8 percent over 1990 and totaled 343,663. Significant increases in criminal case filings occurred in felony cases which rose by 8.6 percent to 6,718 and in traffic capias/show cause cases which increased by 5.8 percent to 1,265. Among traffic cases, the number of misdemeanors increased 8.2 percent to 41,012.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In the Twenty-first Circuit, new cases grew from 3,965 in 1990 to 4,057 in 1991, a 2.3 percent increase. Civil cases (1,523) rose by 5.5 percent and criminal cases (2,534) increased by 0.5 percent. The number of concluded cases rose by 34.4 percent and totaled 4,501. Pending cases decreased by 15.1 percent to 2,504. The number of juries impaneled rose 1.8 percent, from 55 to 56.

The average circuit caseload in the Twenty-first was 2,029 cases per judge; 762 civil cases per judge, and 1,267 criminal cases per judge. The average civil caseload in the Twenty-first ranked eighteenth in the state, and the average criminal caseload in the Twenty-first was the second highest in the state. The total commenced caseload ranked fourth highest among the circuits. The circuit ranked first in the state for the number of concluded cases per judge. The statewide average caseloads were 1,631 circuit cases, 838 civil cases and 793 criminal cases per judge.

Nearly 5 percent of the 1,991 concluded civil cases were concluded by a judge trial. Only 0.8 percent ended in a jury trial. Statewide, 13.6 percent of civil cases were concluded in a judge trial, 1.5 percent in jury trials. Almost 52 percent of civil cases were concluded within 12 months of filing. Across the state, 65.5 percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year. Among the 2,510 criminal cases that were concluded in the Twenty-first last year, 24.0 percent terminated in judge trials and 2.4 percent ended in a jury trial. Statewide, 29 percent of criminal cases ended in judge trials, 3.9 percent in jury trials. Of the criminal cases concluded, 79.1 percent were ended within 5 months of filing, identical to the statewide percentage concluded within that time frame.

General District Court

In the General District Court, 37,759 new cases were filed in 1991, a 2.4 percent rise over 1990. A 13 percent increase was experienced in traffic cases, from 11,698 in 1990 to 13,202 in 1991. However, civil cases fell 2.4 percent, from 19,180 in 1990 to 18,717 in 1991, and criminal cases fell 2.4 percent from 5,983 to 5,840.

The general district caseload in the Twenty-first was 18,880 cases per judge. This caseload ranked twenty-eighth in the state, and was lower than the statewide average caseload of 28,245 cases per judge, and also lower than the average caseload per judge among rural districts, 24,496 cases per judge. The Twenty-first had the lowest traffic caseload per judge in the state, at 6,601 traffic cases per judge. The average criminal caseload per judge ranked twenty-ninth, at 2,920 criminal cases per judge. Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

The number of commenced cases in the Twenty-second Circuit increased by 5.6 percent in 1991 to 6,101, with civil cases (2,257) decreasing by 5.9 percent and criminal (3,844) cases increasing by 13.9 percent. The number of concluded cases (6,038) increased by 5.9 percent, while pending cases increased by 2.2 percent. The Twenty-second was third in the state in average caseload per judge for concluded cases. Its 2,034 cases per judge compares with the statewide average of 1,631. The circuit ranked twenty-ninth in the state in average pending cases per judge at 963, compared with the statewide average of 1,519. Average criminal caseload per judge, at 1,281, rose to a ranking of first place statewide, and the average civil caseload (752 cases per judge) was twentieth among the 31 circuits.

There were 87 juries impaneled in 1991, a 3.6 percent increase from the previous year. Caseload distribution was as follows: law, 16 percent; equity, 21 percent; felony, 37 percent; and misdemeanor, 26 percent. Statewide, the distribution was 26 percent law, 25 percent equity, 33 percent felony and 16 percent misdemeanor.

Almost 38 percent of criminal cases and 92 percent of civil cases were concluded by judge trials. Nearly three percent of criminal cases and 1.4 percent of civil cases were concluded by jury trials. Approximately 84 percent of civil cases were concluded within one year of filing, the highest percentage in the state for several consecutive years. The circuit led all others in the percentage of civil cases disposed in one year. Among criminal cases, 63.0 percent were concluded within 5 months of filing, with 28.6 percent concluded within 1 month. Approximately 3 percent of concluded criminal cases took 9 months or longer to complete.

General District Court

New cases filed in the General District Court fell 3.2 percent in 1991, to 52,475. Over one-third of these cases (38 percent) were civil cases, 39 percent were traffic cases, and 23 percent were criminal cases. Criminal cases and civil cases each increased, criminal cases by 0.9 percent to 12,305 cases, and civil cases by 4.3 percent, to 19,676 cases. Traffic cases decreased by 11.5 percent, to 20,494 cases. The average criminal caseload of 6,153 cases per judge ranked first in the state, and was over 2,000 cases per judge greater than the state average of 4,143 cases per judge. The average district traffic caseload of 10,247 cases per judge ranked twenty-fourth in the state, and was below the state average traffic caseload of 14,360 cases per judge and the average traffic caseload among rural districts, 13,570 cases per judge. The average civil caseload of 9,838 cases per judge ranked eleventh in the state, nearly 100 cases above the state average civil caseload, and nearly 3,000 cases above the average civil caseload among rural districts. The number of hearings decreased 2.1 percent, to 57,205 hearings.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

In 1991, new cases in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court increased 2.9 percent to reach 10,181. Juvenile cases increased 2.5 percent to 5,602 while domestic relations cases showed an increase of 3.4 percent and totaled 4,579, 151 more than in 1990. The 154.3 percent increase in status actions (206) was the greatest percentage increase among case types. There were decreases of 15.8 percent in juvenile traffic cases, which totaled 971, and 6.5 percent in domestic relations civil support

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The number of commenced cases in the Twenty-third Circuit remained steady with those filed in 1990. The caseload grew by less than one percent during 1991 and totaled 8,984. Civil cases (4,111) experienced a 7.1 percent decrease, but the number of criminal cases increased, rising from 4,475 in 1990 to 4,873 in 1991, an 8.9 percent increase. The number of cases pending (7,504) also grew by 5.1 percent, while the number of concluded cases rose by 1.9 percent. There were a total of 107 juries impaneled, a 23.0 percent decrease from the previous year.

The average caseload per judge (1,797) ranked eighth among the 31 circuits in the state, and was higher than both the statewide average of 1,631 cases per judge, and the urban average of 1,642 cases per judge. The average civil caseload of 822 cases per judge ranked fourteenth in the state while the average criminal caseload of 975 cases per judge ranked sixth. Statewide, the average civil caseload was 838 cases per judge, and the average criminal caseload was 793 cases per judge. The average urban civil caseload was 883 cases per judge. The caseload distribution was: 21 percent law, 25 percent equity, 40 percent felony, and 14 percent misdemeanor. These proportions differed from the statewide distribution: 26 percent law, 25 percent equity, 33 percent felony, and 16 percent misdemeanor.

There were 8,621 cases concluded in the Twenty-third Circuit, a 1.9 percent increase over 1990. Of the 4,137 civil cases concluded, 34.5 percent were terminated by a judge trial, while 1.4 percent were concluded by jury. Statewide, 13.6 percent of civil cases were concluded by a judge trial, and 1.5 percent were concluded by a jury trial. Nearly 66 percent of civil cases were concluded within 12 months of filing. This was near the state total of 65.5 percent. Of the 4,484 criminal cases that were concluded in the Twenty-third Circuit, over half (59.2 percent) were concluded by a judge trial, and 2.2 percent were terminated by a jury trial. Approximately 87 percent ended within 5 months. Statewide, 79 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 5 months.

General District Court

The number of new cases in the General District Court increased by only 100 cases in 1991 totaling 122,148. Traffic cases (48,037) fell by 1.2 percent, criminal cases (25,721) declined by 5.4 percent, while civil cases (48,390) rose by 4.5 percent as did hearings (131,465) by 1.3 percent. The greatest increases occurred in criminal felony and traffic capias/show cause actions, which increased by 7.4 percent and 4.5 percent, respectively. Criminal and traffic misdemeanors declined by 6.8 percent and 21.2 percent, respectively.

Although the average caseload per judge for criminal cases (5,144) ranked sixth in the state, the overall caseload ranking was twenty-second in the state with 24,430 new cases per judge. The traffic caseload ranked twenty-seventh in the state and the civil caseload, twelfth. The caseload distribution was criminal, 21 percent; traffic, 39 percent; and civil, 40 percent; which compares to a state caseload distribution of criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent; and civil, 35 percent. There were 26,293 hearings per judge in 1991, twenty-first among the 32 districts.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The Twenty-fourth Judicial Circuit experienced a decrease of 3.4 percent in the number of commenced cases in 1991, from 7,717 cases in 1990 to 7,453 in 1991. New criminal cases registered a 3 percent decrease to total 4,084, while civil cases decreased by 3.9 percent to 3,369. There were 7,127 cases concluded during 1991, a decrease of 5.8 percent. Pending cases increased by 7.4 percent. The number of juries impaneled decreased by 2.9 percent, going from 136 in 1990 to 132 in 1991.

The overall average caseload per judge in the circuit court was 1,491, compared with a statewide average caseload of 1,631. This gave the Twenty-fourth an average caseload ranking of twenty-first in the state. The average civil caseload (674 cases per judge) ranked twenty-sixth in the state, and the average criminal caseload (817) ranked seventeenth. Caseload distribution was law, 21 percent; equity, 25 percent; felony, 37 percent; and misdemeanor, 18 percent.

The 681 judge trials made up 21.0 percent of the 3,237 concluded civil cases. There were 37 jury trials (1.6 percent). Over 46 percent of all concluded criminal cases resulted in judge trials, with 3.6 percent requiring juries. Over 77 percent of civil cases were concluded within 12 months of filing, well above the state average for several consecutive years. Nearly 16 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 30 days and another 61 percent were concluded within 150 days; 10.2 percent took at least 270 days to conclude.

General District Court

In general district court, 76,290 new cases were filed in 1991. This represents a 2.4 percent increase over 1990. The greatest increase appeared among civil cases, which comprised 35 percent of the court's caseload and increased 13.1 percent to 25,590 cases in 1991. Nearly half (45 percent) of the district's docket was traffic cases, which decreased 4.1 percent, to 33,457 cases. Criminal and traffic cases made up the remaining 50 percent of the caseload. The number of criminal cases increased 7.6 percent, to 16,743 cases. Among criminal cases, the number of felonies increased 8.4 percent; capias/show cause matters rose by 8.5 percent. Among traffic cases, the number of misdemeanors fell 9.8 percent from 8,812 to 7,951, while the number of felonies went from 146 to 179, an increase of 22.6 percent. There were 83,332 hearings held in the Twenty-fourth in 1991, an increase of only 0.3 percent.

The average caseload in general district court was twenty-seventh highest in the state, at 21,192 cases per judge. The average criminal caseload ranked eighth in the state, at 4,651 cases per judge. The statewide average criminal caseload was 4,143 cases per judge. The average civil and traffic caseloads in the Twenty-fourth ranked nineteenth and twenty-eighth, respectively. At 7,108 civil cases per judge and 9,433 traffic cases per judge, they were below the statewide average caseloads of 9,742 cases per judge and 14,360 cases per judge, respectively.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The number of new cases filed in the Twenty-fourth J&DR district court (12,558) in 1991 remained virtually unchanged from 1990 when 12,568 cases were filed. The number of juvenile cases totaled 6,825, an increase of 1.0 percent, and domestic relations cases fell to 5,733, a decline of 1.4 percent. Among juvenile cases, the number of delinquency matters fell nearly 10 percent to 7,951 while status cases rose from 2,889 to 3,477, an increase of 20.4 percent. Among domestic relations cases, the number of misdemeanors showed the greatest percentage decline of all cases types; these cases totaled 1,137, 4.5 percent fewer than in 1990.

The average total caseload in the district was 4,186 cases per judge, below the statewide average of 4,394 cases per judge and only 30 cases higher than the rural the rural district average of 4,156 cases per judge. The average juvenile caseload (2,275 cases per judge) and average domestic relations caseload (1,911 cases per judge) ranked twentieth and fifteenth, respectively. The average juvenile caseload fell just below the average juvenile caseload among rural districts (2,275 cases per judge), and the average domestic relations caseload surpassed the state averages of 1,783 domestic relations cases per judge. Fifty-four percent of the docket were juvenile cases; 46 percent were domestic relations cases.

Magistrate System

The 17 magistrates in the Twenty-fourth recorded 28,709 hours, 34,676 transactions, and 25,762 processes issued with an issuance rate of 74 percent. The number of transactions was 1.3 percent fewer than in 1990. Probable cause hearings, with an issuance rate of 79.4 percent, resulted in 15,844 processes being issued. The issuance rate among bond hearings was 60.1 percent, for a total of 7,177 processes issued.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The caseload in the Twenty-fifth Circuit Court decreased slightly in 1991 and totaled 5,733 cases. Only two other circuits showed declines in the number of commenced cases in 1991. Criminal cases fell by 1.9 percent, and civil cases decreased by 1.1 percent. Concluded cases totaled 5,833, a 5.5 percent decrease over the previous year. There was a total of 4,550 pending cases, an increase of 0.4 percent from 1990. Eighty-seven juries were impaneled, 9 fewer than during 1990.

The average caseload per judge in the Circuit Court was 1,433, as compared with a statewide figure of 1,631. This was twenty-fifth in the state among the 31 circuits. The civil caseload per judge was 734, twenty-third in the state, while for criminal cases the circuit ranked twenty-first in the state at 700 cases per judge. The state average was 793 cases per judge. The caseload distribution was law, 21 percent; equity, 30 percent; felony, 34 percent; and misdemeanor, 15 percent.

Judge trials were held in 12.8 percent of the 3,019 concluded civil cases, and jury trials were held in 1.2 percent. In criminal cases, 34.6 percent of the total of 2,814 cases were concluded by a judge trial and 2.0 percent by a jury trial. Over 68 percent of the circuit's civil cases were concluded within 1 year. Nearly 36 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 30 days of filing and an additional 47.0 percent were concluded within 150 days; 8.7 percent took 270 days or longer to conclude.

General District Court

In the General District Court, new cases totaled 79,130, a decrease of 2.9 percent, with criminal cases totaling 14,082 and civil cases totaling 16,523. Traffic cases fell to 148,525 in 1991, down 7.0 percent from 1990 levels. Among criminal cases, the number of capias/show cause matters increased 16.6 percent, from 2,003 to 2,335. There was a 16.0 percent decline in the number of traffic misdemeanors. Hearings decreased by 5.4 percent to total 80,348. * The Twenty-fifth's caseload distribution was criminal, 18 percent; traffic, 61 percent; and civil, 21 percent. The statewide distribution was criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent; and civil, 35 percent.

The average general district caseload of 17,984 ranked thirtieth among the 32 districts. The average traffic caseload (11,028 cases per judge) ranked twenty-first and the average civil caseload (3,755 cases per judge) ranked twenty-ninth. The average traffic caseload fell below the average state and the average rural traffic caseload of 14,360 and 13,570 cases per judge, respectively, as did the average civil caseload and the average criminal caseload. At 3,200 cases per judge, the Twenty-fifth's average criminal caseload was twenty-seventh in the state.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

Total new cases grew 2.2 percent in 1991 to total 11,501. New juvenile cases decreased by less than 20 cases to 6,820 with

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In 1991, the number of commenced cases increased by less than one percent in the Twenty-sixth Circuit to reach 7,103 cases. Civil cases totaled 3,226, 6.2 percent fewer than in 1990, while criminal cases rose to 3,877, an increase of 6.7 percent. The number of concluded cases totaled 7,288, a 1.1 percent increase. The number of pending cases totaled 5,076, increasing by 3.7 percent. There were 177 juries impaneled, a 2.7 percent decrease over the 182 juries impaneled in 1990.

The average caseload per judge was 1,421 in the circuit, twenty-seventh among the 31 circuits and below the statewide and rural averages. The average caseload per judge for civil cases totaled 645, twenty-seventh among the 31 circuits. The average for criminal cases was 775, twentieth in the state. Felony cases took up a considerably higher percentage (44 percent) of the caseload than statewide (33 percent). Caseload distribution was law, 21 percent; equity, 25 percent; felony, 44 percent; and misdemeanor, 11 percent. In comparison, the state caseload distribution was law, 26 percent; equity, 25 percent; felony, 33 percent; and misdemeanor, 16 percent.

Less than one percent of civil cases were concluded by jury trials while 12.8 percent resulted in trial by judge. Approximately 17 percent of criminal cases were concluded by a judge trial, with jury trials being held in 4.8 percent of cases. The circuit concluded 74.7 percent of its civil cases within 1 year; this was above the state average of 65.5 percent. Among criminal cases, 24.6 percent were concluded in 30 days or less and another 61.3 percent were concluded within 150 days; 4.3 percent took 270 days or longer to conclude.

General District Court

The number of new cases filed in the Twenty-sixth General District Court grew by less than one percent in 1991 to 110,521. New criminal cases (21,429) decreased by 7.3 percent, traffic cases decreased by 1.1 percent, and civil cases rose 10.5 percent. Among criminal cases, the greatest percentage decreases in the number of cases occurred in misdemeanors which fell 8.8 percent. All types of traffic cases declined during the year. Hearings, at 117,708, rose by 0.5 percent over the previous year. Traffic cases comprised about the same proportion of the caseload (52 percent) as statewide (51 percent). Criminal cases, at 19 percent, and civil cases, at 28 percent, can be compared to state case distributions of criminal, 15 percent; and civil, 35 percent.

The four judges in the general district court averaged 27,630 new cases each during 1991, fifteenth among the 32 districts. The district's caseload was below the statewide average of 28,245 but above the average for

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

New cases in the Twenty-seventh Circuit Court grew by 1.6 percent in 1991 to 6,649. Civil cases (3,236) decreased by 0.9 percent while criminal cases (3,413) rose by 4.0 percent. The case distribution was law, 1,320 (20 percent); equity, 1,916 (29 percent); felony, 2,290 (34 percent); and misdemeanor, 1,123 (17 percent). The court showed a 2.2 percent decrease in pending cases and a 10.9 percent increase in concluded cases. The number of juries impaneled, 132, was 16.8 percent more than those impaneled the previous year.

The overall average caseload per judge was 1,662, compared with a statewide average of 1,631 and a rural average of 1,615. Civil caseload per judge was 809, which ranked sixteenth highest among the 31 circuits. The criminal caseload ranked thirteenth in the state. It averaged 853 cases per judge, compared to a statewide average of 793 and a rural average of 840.

Over 10 percent of civil cases resulted in judge trials while jury trials were required for over 2 percent. Nearly 17 percent of criminal cases were concluded by judge trials. Juries were required in 3.3 percent of the cases. Sixty-five percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year. Approximately 26 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 30 days and an additional 47 percent were concluded within 150 days; 13.2 percent required 270 days or longer from filing to conclusion.

General District Court

The General District Court experienced an increase of 9.2 percent in the number of new civil cases (22,072). These cases contributed significantly towards the circuit's overall caseload increase of 7.4 percent. In addition, criminal cases (18,544) increased by 3.0 percent and traffic cases (66,767) increased by 8.1 percent. Total new cases reached 107,383. The greatest increases in cases occurred in criminal capias/show cause (22.3 percent), traffic capias/show cause (11.3 percent), and in traffic infractions cases (13.3 percent). The caseload percentage distribution was criminal, 17 percent; traffic, 62 percent; and civil, 21 percent. This compares with average state caseload distribution of criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent and civil, 35 percent.

The four judges in the Twenty-seventh averaged 26,846 new cases each in 1991, sixteenth among the 32 districts. This caseload exceeded the average for judges in rural districts (24,496 case per judge) but fell below the average caseload for the state as a whole (28,245 cases per judge). The criminal caseload, at 4,636 per judge, ranked eleventh in the state while the traffic caseload, at 16,692, ranked ninth and the civil caseload, at 5,518, ranked twenty-sixth. The number of hearings, which increased by 6.9 percent, resulted in an average of 27,108 hearings per judge, nineteenth in the state.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In 1991, the number of commenced cases in the Twenty-eighth Circuit increased by 7.8 percent and totaled 2,845, with civil cases (1,578) decreasing by 0.6 percent and criminal cases (1,267) increasing by 20.3 percent. Pending cases increased by 9.4 percent since the number of concluded cases rose by only 3.3 percent and totaled 2,657, 188 less than the number of cases filed. The number of juries impaneled decreased by 13.0 percent, from 92 in 1990 to 80 in 1991. Misdemeanor cases represented only about 11 percent of the caseload. The remainder was distributed among law cases, at 24 percent; equity cases, at 32 percent; and felony cases, at 34 percent.

The average caseload per judge, which ranked twenty-sixth in the state, was 1,423, compared with a statewide average of 1,631. For criminal cases the average (634 cases per judge) also ranked twenty-sixth among all circuits while the average civil caseload (838 cases per judge) was seventeenth.

Of the 1,500 civil cases concluded, 17.3 percent were concluded by a judge trial, and 2.5 percent were concluded by a jury trial. In criminal cases, 16.5 were concluded by a judge trial and 4.5 by a jury trial. Nearly 85 percent of civil cases were concluded within 2 years, with 72.3 percent reaching disposition within 1 year. Less than 4 percent took five years or longer from filing to conclusion. Forty-four percent of criminal cases took less than one month to conclude. Six percent lasted longer than 10 months.

General District Court

The total number of new cases in the Twenty-eighth General District increased by 10 percent in 1991 and totaled 34,706, with civil cases (7,194) increasing by 0.5 percent. Traffic cases (20,771) increased by over 17 percent, and criminal cases (6,741) remained virtually unchanged from the number recorded in 1990. Among criminal cases, the number of felonies rose nearly 19 percent from 965 in 1990 to 1,145 in 1991. The number of traffic infractions increased by over 3,500 cases or 30 percent, while traffic misdemeanors fell by 337 cases or 6.0 percent. Hearings rose by 13.1 percent over 1990 to a total of 32,091.

Civil cases made up a considerably smaller percentage of the total caseload than was the case for the state as a whole, while both criminal and traffic cases took up a somewhat greater percentage. Caseload percentage distribution in the district was criminal, 19 percent; traffic, 60 percent, and civil, 21 percent. The distribution statewide was 15 percent criminal, 51 percent traffic, and 34 percent civil.

The district ranked next to last among the 32 districts with 17,353 cases per judge. Statewide, 28,245 cases were commenced per judge and among rural districts there were 24,496 per judge. The hearing caseload per judge (16,046) ranked thirty-second in the state.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The number of new cases in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court increased by only 13 in 1991 with juvenile cases (3,692) increasing by 3.5 percent and domestic relations cases (2,258) decreasing by 4.7 percent for total of 5,950. Increases occurred in juvenile status cases, which increased from 85 to 121 or 42.4 percent, and domestic relations felonies, which increased from 87 to 177 or 103.4 percent.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

In 1991, the total number of cases commenced (3,864) in the Twenty-ninth Circuit Court increased approximately 23 percent: new criminal cases (1,665) increased by over 48 percent and civil cases (2,199) rose by 8.9 percent. The caseload distribution was law, 28 percent; equity, 29 percent; felony, 27 percent and misdemeanor, 16 percent of total cases. The number of concluded cases (3,305) rose by 1.1 percent, while pending cases (4,571) increased by 14.8 percent. The number of juries impaneled, however, decreased by 6.4 percent to 103, for an average of 34 per judge as compared to an average of 35 per judge, statewide.

At 555, the average criminal caseload per judge was thirtieth in the state. Statewide the average was 793. The average civil caseload (733) ranked twenty-fourth. The Twenty-ninth also had the lowest number of concluded cases per judge at 1,102 compared to a statewide average of 1,560.

Approximately 18 percent of civil cases were concluded by a judge trial and 0.9 percent were held by a jury trial. In criminal cases, approximately 10.4 percent of cases were concluded by a judge trial and 7.8

percent were concluded by a jury trial (9.5 percent). A total of 66.6 percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year of filing. Nearly 16 percent of criminal cases were concluded within 30 days while an additional 41 percent were concluded within 150 days; 17.2 percent took 270 days or longer to complete.

General District Court

There was a general increase of 6.7 percent in the number of new cases filed in the Twenty-ninth General District Court in 1991. Cases totaled 36,491, 1,187 more than in 1990. New criminal cases, which totaled 8,557, increased by 4.5 percent, while traffic cases, which totaled 16,679, rose by 14.6 percent and civil cases fell by 1.8 percent to 11,255. Among criminal cases, the number of felonies rose 8.5 percent and capias/show cause actions increased by nearly 11 percent. There was a decline of nearly 21 percent in the number of traffic capias/show cause matters. The caseload distribution was criminal, 23 percent; traffic, 46 percent; and civil, 31 percent. The civil caseload percentage was approximately the same as the average state percentage distribution.

At 18,246 cases per judge, the average caseload for the Twenty-ninth General District Court was considerably less than the statewide average caseload of 28,245. The criminal caseload per judge was 4,279 compared to the state average of 4,143. The traffic caseload per judge (8,340) was below the rural average of 13,570, as was the average for civil cases (5,628) compared among other rural districts where the figure was 6,878. The number of hearings per judge was 20,485 compared with a statewide average of 28,512 and ranked twenty-seventh in the state.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

The number of new cases filed in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court increased in 1991 by 10.2 percent and totaled 7,380. The 13.8 percent increase in juvenile cases was accompanied by an increase of 4.7 percent in domestic relations cases. Among juvenile cases, custody/visitation matters increased by 24.4 percent and delinquency cases increased by 6.2 percent. Domestic relations capias/show cause actions and felonies increased significantly by 26.0 percent and 34.0 percent, respectively. There was a 2.2 percent decrease in domestic relations civil support

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

The Thirtieth Circuit Court experienced a 4.0 percent increase in the number of cases filed in 1991. Commenced cases totaled 3,996. Civil cases (1,929) increased by 9.2 percent and criminal cases (2,067) decreased by 0.4 percent. The caseload distribution in the Thirtieth was law, 21 percent; equity, 28 percent; felony, 25 percent; and misdemeanor, 27 percent. The state distribution was law, 26 percent; equity, 25 percent; felony, 33 percent; and misdemeanor, 16 percent.

The average caseload per judge was 1,332, compared to a rural average of 1,615.

Average civil caseload, which was twenty-eighth in the state, was 643, compared to a statewide average of 838. In criminal cases, the average of 689 was somewhat closer to the statewide figure of 793, ranking twenty-third in the state. At 1,332 cases per judge, the Thirtieth ranked twenty-ninth in average number of concluded cases per judge among the 31 circuits. The number of cases pending, however, ranked fourth with 1,872 per judge. There were 128 juries impaneled, approximately 4 percent more than the previous year.

Nearly two percent of the 1,959 concluded civil cases were concluded by a jury trial in 1991, while nearly 23 percent were concluded by a judge trial. Among the 2,161 concluded criminal cases, 7.3 percent were disposed of by jury trial and 16.7 reached termination through a judge trial. Approximately 55 percent of the total concluded civil cases were disposed of within 1 year of filing; an additional 9.4 percent were disposed of within two years. Over 31 percent of the criminal cases concluded were disposed of within one month of the date of filing, while another 23.6 percent were concluded with five months.

General District Court

The Thirtieth General District Court experienced decreases in most categories of new cases filed in 1991. The district's total declined by 4.4 percent or 1,412 cases. Criminal cases decreased by nearly 13 percent, traffic cases decreased by less than one percent, and civil cases decreased by more than six percent. The largest percentage decreases occurred in traffic misdemeanor (14.5 percent) and felony (15.9 percent) cases. Criminal felony cases decreased by 29.1 percent. The caseload distribution was law, 21 percent; equity, 28 percent; felony 25 percent; and misdemeanor, 27 percent.

The average caseload per judge in the General District Court was lowest of the 32 districts with 15,477 cases, compared with a statewide average of 28,245 and a rural average of 24,496. In criminal cases, the district was much closer to the state average, 3,493 compared to 4,143. The traffic caseload was 10,008 per judge as compared to the statewide average of 14,360, while the number of civil cases per judge (1,976) was also below the statewide average of 9,742.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

New cases in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court increased by 9.4 percent to 6,759 with juvenile cases showing a 16.2 percent increase and domestic relations cases increasing by less than one percent. The largest percentage increases occurred in juvenile delinquency cases, 16.8 percent; domestic relations misdemeanors, 17.2 percent; and domestic relations capias/show cause, 39.0 percent. Significant decreases occurred in juvenile traffic (15.2 percent), domestic relations felonies (12.5) and civil support cases (20.2 percent). Hearings totaled 14,029, 13.6 percent more than in 1990.

Review of 1991 Caseload Activity

Circuit Court

Total case filings increased 3.7 percent to 7,040 in the Thirty-first Circuit Courts in 1991. The number of criminal cases (2,789) rose by 8.6 percent while civil cases (4,251) increased by less than one percent. Concluded cases rose by 1.4 percent to 6,689 while the number of pending cases rose by 4.2 percent. The 194 juries impanelled during 1991 constituted a 27.6 percent increase over the number impanelled in 1990. The caseload distribution was as follows: law, 32 percent; equity, 28 percent; felony, 29 percent; and misdemeanor, 10 percent.

The total number of cases commenced per judge in the circuit was 1,408 (850 civil and 558 criminal), compared to the statewide average of 1,631 and an urban average of 1,642. The number of juries impanelled per judge was 39 compared to the statewide average of 35.

Only 1.8 percent of civil cases were concluded by a jury trial. Judge trials occurred in 11.2 percent of civil cases. Approximately 72 percent of civil cases were concluded within 1 year of filing. This was above the state average of 65.5 percent. Another 15.5 percent were concluded within 2 years. Cases which took five years or longer to conclude accounted for 9.0 percent of disposed civil cases. Judge trials made up 36.0 percent and jury trials made up 5.3 percent of concluded criminal cases. Twenty-one percent of criminal cases were concluded within 1 month of filing, while 10.8 percent required 10 months or longer to conclude.

General District Court

The number of new cases in the General District Court in 1991 rose by 1.2 percent from the previous year to 110,524. Criminal cases fell 4.2 percent and traffic cases declined by 2.6 percent; civil cases rose, however, by nearly 4,000 cases or 15.6 percent. Areas showing a significant decline were traffic capias/show cause and criminal capias/show cause cases, which declined by 42.2 and 19.5 percent, respectively. Significant increases occurred in traffic felony and criminal felony cases, which grew by 13.5 percent and 25.0 percent, respectively. Hearings went from 99,449 in 1990 to 100,405 in 1991, a 1.0 percent increase.

The General District Court's average caseload per judge of 27,632 was close to the statewide average of 28,245, although it was lower than the urban average of 31,374. The average criminal caseload per judge was also close to the statewide average and ranked eighteenth in the state. The average traffic caseload, however, was eighth in the state, and the average civil caseload was twentieth. The caseload percentage distribution was criminal, 14 percent; traffic, 61 percent; and civil, 35 percent; as compared to state rankings of criminal, 15 percent; traffic, 51 percent; and civil, 35 percent.

Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court

New cases in the Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court increased by 9.0 percent in 1991 with juvenile cases increasing by 9.6 percent and domestic relations cases increasing by 7.5 percent. These increases resulted in a total of 15,481 new cases. Domestic relations criminal support cases went from 36 in 1990 to 12 in 1991, a decrease of 66.7 percent. Most other areas showed large percentage increases in case numbers including domestic relations civil support cases, which increased by 14.2 percent; custody/visitation cases, which increased by 9.5 percent; delinquency cases, which increased by 14.3 percent; and status cases, which increased from 118 to 183 or 55.1 percent. The number of hearings increased by 17.920 percent.

The average caseload per judge was 5,160, compared with a statewide average of 4,394. While the average juvenile caseload per judge (3,620) ranked fourth in the state, the domestic relations caseload (1,540) ranked twenty-fourth. The caseload distribution was 70 percent juvenile and 30 percent domestic relations.

Magistrate System

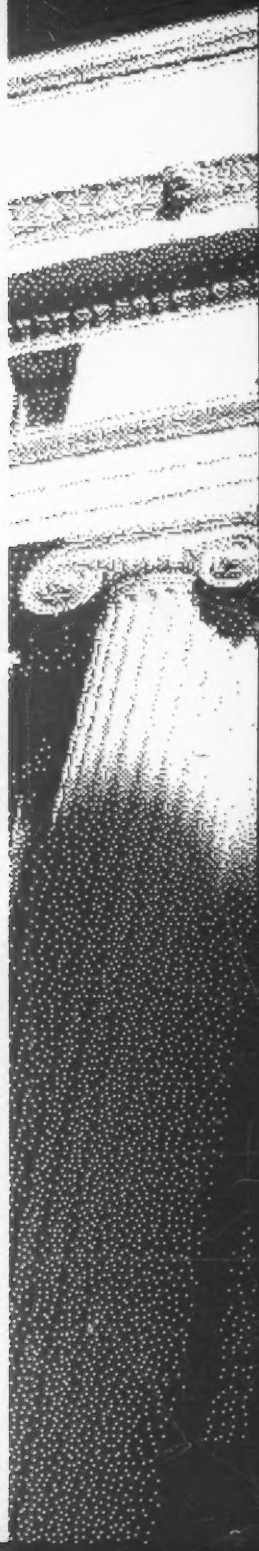

In 1991, transactions in the Thirty-first decreased by nearly two percent and totaled 51,781; the number of processes issued decreased by less than one percent to 41,520. The 11 magistrates in the district reported 21,541 hours. Over 92 percent of probable cause hearing transactions resulted in processes being issued. The issuance rate for bonds was 57.1 percent.

INFORMATION ABOUT VIRGINIA JUDICIAL POLICY MAKING BODIES

The Judicial Council of Virginia is charged with the responsibility of making a continuous study of the organization, rules, and methods of procedure and practice of the judicial system of the Commonwealth. It is responsible also for examining the work accomplished and results produced by the system and its individual offices and courts. A report of the proceedings and recommendations of the Council is made to the General Assembly and to the Supreme Court on an annual basis.

The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court is presiding officer for the Council whose membership includes one Court of Appeals judge, six Circuit Court judges, one General District Court judge, one Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court judge, two attorneys qualified to practice in the Supreme Court, and the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Virginia Senate and House of Delegates. Council members are appointed by the Chief Justice and serve for four years, or during his pleasure.

The Committee on District Courts was created to assist the Chief Justice in the administrative supervision of Virginia's unified court system. Among the statutorily mandated responsibilities of the CDC are recommending new judgeships and certifying the need to fill district court vacancies, authorizing the number of clerks, magistrates and personnel in each district, establishing guidelines and policies for court system personnel, and fixing salary classification schedules for district court personnel and magistrates.

Membership of this Committee includes the Chairmen of the Committees for Courts of Justice in the Senate and House of Delegates, two members of each of the Courts of Justice Committees appointed by the respective Chairman, one Circuit Court judge, one General District Court judge, and one Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court judge. These judicial members are appointed by the Chief Justice and serve at his pleasure.

The Judicial Conference of Virginia was organized to discuss and consider means and methods of improving the administration of justice in the Commonwealth. Active members include the Chief Justice and justices of the Supreme Court, all judges of the Court of Appeals, the Circuit Courts, and all retired justices and judges of such courts. The Chief Justice serves as President of the Conference. Six Circuit Court judges and one Court of Appeals judge are elected to serve on the Conference's Executive Committee. The Conference conducts its business through nine standing committees.

The Judicial Conference of Virginia for District Courts is similar to the Judicial Conference for Circuit Courts in its mission and responsibilities. Membership includes the Chief Justice, who serves as its President, and all active judges of the General District and Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Courts. Seven District Court judges are elected to serve on the Executive Committee of the Conference. The Conference has a committee structure similar to the Judicial Conference of Virginia.

INFORMATION ABOUT VIRGINIA JUDGES

The seven justices of the Supreme Court of Virginia are elected by a majority vote of each House of the General Assembly for a term of twelve years. Interim appointments are made by the Governor subject to election by the General Assembly at the next regular session. By law, the senior justice in years of service on the Court is the Chief Justice.

The ten Court of Appeals judges are elected by a majority vote of each House of the General Assembly. They serve for eight-year terms. Interim appointments are made by the Governor subject to election by the General Assembly at the next regular session. They serve a term of eight years. The chief judge is elected by a vote of the ten judges, for a term of four years.

The 135 judges of the Circuit Courts are elected and receive interim appointments in the same manner as the Court of Appeals judges. The Chief Judge of the circuit is elected for a two year term by a vote of the judges serving in the circuit.

The 194 judges of Virginia's District Courts are elected by a majority vote of each house of the General Assembly for terms of six years. Vacancies in district court judgeships occurring when the General Assembly is not in session are filled by the circuit court judges of the corresponding circuit. The judges so appointed must be elected by the next session of the General Assembly. Each district has a Chief General District Court judge and a Chief Juvenile & Domestic Relations District Court judge elected by peer vote for a two year term. The chief judge is the administrative head of the respective courts in the district and is responsible for the management of the courts.
